EXPECT TAX BILL WILL PASS NOW

Action of Congress Toward Bonus Believed to Have Stopped Opposition

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—With the soldier bonus bill written into law over President Coolidge's veto, party leaders in Congress today sought to speed up final action on the new tax reduction bill.

The tax measure, now in conference, would provide a flat 25 per cent reduction on all income taxes for the present year and a general slashing of future taxes.

Weakens Opposition

The crushing defeats administered the president by both House and Senate on the bonus were reported to have greatly weakened administration opposition to the new revenue measure. Presidential spokesmen who openly condemned the tax bill a week ago because it failed to include the Mellon plan, were now said to favor acceptance of the measure in the belief that another legislative clash between the White House and Congress would result in grave damage to the president's political fortunes.

This belief was heightened by reliable reports that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon had practically withdrawn his opposition to the congressional tax bill which ultimately will be a compromise between the Longworth Republican House bill and the Simmons Democratic Senate measure. Mellon was said to have told friends he would not urge a veto of the tax bill.

Bills Will Not Clash

The bonus payments will be distributed over a period of twenty years with the bulk of payments due at the end of the twentieth year, about the time most of America's war debt will be refunded. For this reason, Mellon was reported to feel the bonus and tax bills would not clash nor wreak a severe finan-

Q. Jett of White Path, Ga., a former investigator for the hooded order.

Jett described it as "graft," and candidly admitted he made from $500 to $1000 a week while with the Klan.

Bailey testified that Daugherty gave orders that every request of Smith should be followed within the department. The witness said Smith "gave orders all the time" and frequently caused the dismissal of department agents whom he did not like.

ADJOURNING HOPES ARE BLASTED

Insurgents Demand Passage Of Farm and Railway Legislation

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Hopes for adjournment of Congress on June 7, as planned by administration chieftains, practically vanished today when Progressive-Insurgents announced they would not permit Congress to die without enacting farm and rail legislation.

Southern Democrats also expected to "hold Congress all summer" unless some disposition is made of the Muscle Shoals question.

Delivers Ultimatum

Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, spokesman of the insurgent group in the Senate, in the absence of Senator La Follette, Republican of Wisconsin, who is convalescing from a severe attack of grippe, declared that "administration leaders might as well prepare now for a long, hot summer in Washington unless they give preference to our farm and rail bills." He said sufficient votes had been pledged to carry out his program.

These principal measures are on the calendar which Brookhart said must be acted upon before the group will permit adjournment. These are:

The McNary-Haugen $200,000,000 farm corporation bill; the Howell-Barkley bill abolishing the railroad labor board and substituting national mediation and conciliation boards; and repeal of section 15-A, of the rate-making provision of the Esch-Cummins transportation law. If opposition is too strong to the McNary-Haugen legislation, Brookhart said, the Progressives would accept the Norris-Sinclair bill, setting up a federal export marketing corporation.

Opposed to Bill

The McNary-Haugen bill has much opposition, and many

BONUS BLAMED BY BROKERS IN RAID

Decline In Stocks Follow Heavy Unloading With Orders to Sell

NEW YORK, May 20.—Stocks tumbled to new low levels on the New York Stock Exchange as a result, Wall Street brokers, said, of the overriding of President Coolidge's veto of the soldiers' bonus bill.

Prior to the opening of the market today brokerage houses had on hand an accumulation of orders.

When the selling orders reached the floor of the exchange there followed an almost immediate decline of from 1 to 6 points in standard stocks.

U. S. Steel was one of the heaviest stocks hit by the selling orders. It registered an overnight loss of two points and reached a new low for the year, dropping to 95 1-2. Other important stocks to register declines were Cast Iron Pipe which fell off 6 points; American Can dropping 3 3-4 points; American Woolen lost 2 points; Dupont 5 3-4; Stewart-Warner 3 1-4.

The bond market, too, was weak and the cotton market sold off from 20 to 30 points.

USE TELEPHONE TO SEND PHOTOS

New Invention Tested Out In New York-Cleveland Circuit, Success

NEW YORK, May 20.—Photographs by telephone! Within a comparatively short time, according to telephone officials today, you can, if you are in San Francisco or any other city, send your latest picture to your sweetheart, parent or rich relative in New York. Five minutes after you place the "order" in whatever city you may be, the photograph will have been received at its destination.

The sending of photographs over a telephone wire as a part of the commercial business of the telephone company, is a prospect of the immediate future, officials declared. A wire set up between Cleveland, Ohio, and New York, transmitted fifteen photographs of various persons and scenes.

The photograph circuit will be used to send photographs taken during the Republican national convention to the New York newspapers.

PAYMENT OF WAR DEBTS SOUGHT

U. S. to Ask European States To Meet Obligations As Bonus Passes

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Renewed efforts on the part of the United States government to collect some of the $11,000,000,000 owed by European nations will be made in the very near future, as a result of the passage of the soldiers' bonus insurance legislation, it was stated authoritatively today.

Treasury officials, busy with their pencils today, figured that Europe's unfunded debt to the United States will double itself in twenty years and in 1944, at the present rate and under present conditions, will approximate $22,000,000,000.

Interest Piles Up

In 1945 the government will be called upon to take the burden of the veterans' insurance policies in voting an outlay of some $3,000,000,000.

New figures obtained by the treasury today showed that Europe's total indebtedness on May 15 was $11,888,753,027, of which $10,556,086,131 is principal. Unpaid interest is piling up at the rate of $267,000,000 a year.

Only three nations have funded their indebtedness and put it on a basis of regular payments—Great Britain, Finland and Hungary. Britain's debt was $4,577,000,000. The others were relatively small. A semi-annual interest payment of $69,000,000 is expected from Britain on June 15.

Favorable Terms

The French, Italian and Belgian debts constitute the bulk of the unfunded indebtedness. France's debt originally amounted to $3,340,520,704. Because she has made no effort to fund it, interest at 5 per cent has swelled the total to $4,063,902,927, as of May 15. Italy's original debt was $1,647,997,050, and for the same

Ship's Butcher Flies To Job on Seaplane

SAN PEDRO, May 20.—Bob Aldritt is butcher aboard the Panama-Pacific liner Kroonland. He is an obliging gentleman. Yesterday when the vessel docked he came ashore to mail a letter for a friend. When sailing time arrived, Aldritt was unaccounted for. He had become tangled up in New York's daylight saving law, where he recently visited. An hour and a half later, at sea, however, a seaplane buzzed alongside the Kroonland and Aldritt, the gentleman butcher, was back aboard.

Nurses Win Right To Bob Hair When Sixty-five Strike

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20.—Using modern methods, nurses at the Research hospital here won a hair fight.

The hospital training committee, ruling it was unbecoming to the dignity of a nurse, had suspended ten nurses for bobbing their hair.

Incensed, sixty-five student nurses went on strike. A hurried session was called and the pro and con of abbreviated locks in a dignified hospital was discussed, but the training committee failed to get a good verbal grip on the short hair.

Prosperity Gathering At The News Office Tonight

An open meeting of the Glendale committee, Greater Los Angeles association, will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the editorial rooms of the new Glendale Evening News building at 139 South Brand boulevard, when interesting local and Los Angeles speakers will present this great new industrial development project which has for its keynote the slogan "keep the white spot white."

While the Glendale committee has sent out a limited number of invitations, requesting each recipient to come and bring five other interested friends, the desire is that the meeting be attended by the general public and the fact that everyone is welcome is stressed.

"Keeping the white spot white" is a problem that concerns not only Southern California in general, the committee contends, but Glendale in particular, and is, in short, everybody's business.

The Greater Los Angeles association contemplates a program no less far-reaching than the formation of a great holding company with millions of capital, for the financing of worthy industries and the general develpoment of this favored section. Harry H. Merrick is president of the association and W. D. Longyear is treasurer. Among the directors are to be found such leading industrialists and merchants of the Southwest as Fred L. Baker, Earle C. Anthony, Frank F. Barham, Marius de Brabant, Harry Chandler, E. P. Clark, Cecil B. De Mille, Rex B. Goodcell, Irving H. Hellman, William Lacy, J. F. Sartori and Boyle Workman.

The Glendale committee comprises Charles B. Guthrie, A. L. Baird, O. M. Newby, George H. Bentley, Peter Hanson, Mayor Spencer Robinson, J. M. Boland, C. W. Ingledue, D. H. Smith, C. C. Cooper, George B. Karr, W. L. Twining, A. T. Cowan, R. F. Kitterman, A. R. Eastman, Alexander Mitchell, J. M. Wilson, S. S. Gilhuly, Herman Nelson and L. H. Wilson.

SEARCHERS COMB VOLCANO'S SLOPES

Two Missing Soldiers Sought By Comrades as Kilauea Shoots Out Lava

HONOLULU, May 20.—Search was continued today for Edward J. Hinman and Howard J. Simmons, enlisted men of the Third Regiment of U. S. Engineers, missing more than thirty-six hours in the vicinity of Mount Kilauea, which has been in violent eruption for the past week.

Kilauea claimed the first victim in its known history when T. A. Taylor, Pahala plantation bookkeeper who came here three months ago from Chicago, died in a Hilo hospital from the effects of injuries sustained when he ventured too close to the erupting mountain.

Vegetation around the crater is dying. The road into the park surrounding Kilauea has been closed and rangers stationed at the entrances with orders to arrest any venturing near.

LEASE FOR TENT SHOW UNDECIDED

Murphy's Comedians Seek Site In Casa Verdugo For Next Stand

J. A. Menard, manager of Murphy's Comedians, now playing in a tent at the corner of California and Brand, stated this morning that a site for the location of the show at the expiration of the Glendale license had not been definitely selected. Their last performance at the present location will be one week from tomorrow, according to their written agreement with the City Council.

"Although we announced last night that we were going to move across the wash into Casa Verdugo, we have not signed a lease on the property we want, and something may turn up that will prevent us from doing so.

"It is possible that we will locate in Burbank or Los Angeles, or we may pack up and leave the country. Glendale is too good a town to be without a stock theatre and we would like to put one here."

Further than that Mr. Menard did not say what the plans of the company were. He added that as a result of the publicity given the special meeting of the council yesterday when the extension of their permit came up for discussion, the largest Monday crowd of their stay here was on hand last night to witness their performance.

ESTIMATE BONUS FOR CALIFORNIA

Figures Not Yet Available For Troops From This State, Is Report

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The war department and the United States veterans' bureau were today unable to give an estimate as to how many of the approximately 159,030 ex-service men from California will participate in the bonus.

Neither would they attempt to foretell the number who will receive cash payments and those entitled to insurance benefits.

If 150,000 of the 159,030 are eligible for insurance, the total insurance value to California veterans would be $144,300,000, based upon the estimate that the average insurance policy will have a value of $962.

LOSES LEG, LOSES OUT

ATLANTA, Ga., May 20.—Charging that his wife had "no use for a one-legged man" and that, after he was forced to have his leg amputated, she abused him and compelled him to sleep on a small cot in the kitchen of her brother's home, Dr. Emanuel Zimarakis recently filed suit for divorce in Fulton Superior Court here.

Zimarakis said he had his leg frozen in the course of an arduous Canadian winter, and that he later had to have it amputated. He charged that while he was having it amputated he suffered in silence while his wife abused him and said she had no use for a one-legged man. He said he gave her $4000 shortly after the operation and that even this failed to appease her, therefore he wanted a divorce.

Social Events

For Miss Tarling

Honoring Miss Faith Tarling, whose marriage to Stanley B. Walker will be one of the events of early June, a charmingly appointed miscellaneous shower was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Martin Sunkes and Mrs. Roy Hellman at the home of the former, 1123 Western avenue.

A color scheme of white and gold was carried out in a most beautiful and artistic manner throughout, with marigolds in floral effects, in the dainty menu of the refreshments, and in all th eappointments down to the smallest detail.

Various games were played, Mrs. Frederick B. Walker winning first prize in a contest which consisted of compiling the greatest number of words from the letters of the names of the prospective bride and groom.

Miss Hazel Walters was awarded first prize and Miss Rose Parker, consolation, in a sewing contest, in completing useful and novel articles for kitchen use for the bride.

Miss Hazel Walters also won first prize for "pinning the veil on the bride" while consolation went to Mrs. Flanders.

Another novel game was sending the clothes pins down the line.

At the close of the afternoon a tea wagon was brought in bearing a model bungalow, complete in every detail down to the window boxes filled with blooming plants. It was a gift for Miss Tarling who has been "house hunting" and upon investigating the present, it was found to be filled with an assortment of beautiful and useful presents.

The guests were Mesdames A. V. Tarling, Frederick B. Walker, N. H. Palmer, O. S. Palmer, J. A. Quackenbush, Nadine Walters, Margaret Braden, Terrill, Flanders, Paul Brown, T. B. Miller; Misses Evangeline Quackenbush, Ruth Palmer, Hazel Walters, Ollie Hutchison, Rose Parker and the honoree, Faith Tarling.

Girls' Society

The regular meeting of the Girls Friendly society of St. Mark's Episcopal church was held last night in the social rooms and a program of interest was enjoyed by the girls present.

Mrs. Annette Powers and Miss Fanny Powers were hostesses at the dinner served at 6:30.

Final installment of the original serial story was read by Miss Esther Veitch. This story has been an interesting feature of the programs for two months or more.

Mrs. E. H. Parker gave an informal talk on the founding of the Girls' Friendly society, its aims, object and rules, this being primarily for the benefit of the probationers present who are to be admitted to membership early in June.

The G. F. S. weekly newspaper was read by Velma Johnson, associate editor.

The final number was a debate on the question, "Resolved, that traveling by railway is better than traveling by water." Miss Ethel Read presented the affirmative and Leola Martin the negatide of the question. A general discussion followed, and the debate was conceded to be a tie.

The president, Miss Grace Crampton, presided at the meeting. This organization is making its influence felt in welfare, social and educational work, and is growing in numbers. While it is organized and operated under the auspices of the St. Marks Episcopal church, it is open to all young women of the community, particularly those who are strangers in the city and without resident friends and acquaintances.

A huge bonfire was built about 10 o'clock and a wiener bake enjoyed. There were about forty members and friends present. Mrs. Helen K. Scripps, teacher of the class, and Mrs. T. A. Wright chaperoned the party.

Later in the evening the young people returned to Teddy's Outpost, where the party disbanded and returned home, each one declaring a delightful evening had been enjoyed.

EX-MINE WORKER LEAVES COTTAGE TO HEAD CHURCH

Socialist M. P. to Have Suite in Palace as King's Representative

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service.

LONDON, April 20. — When Bobby Burns wrote "the rank is but the guinea stamp, the man's the gowd for a' that," he could not have been thinking of Jamie Brown. Yet Jamie Brown is the latest Scottish exemplification of the Scottish bard's immortal pronouncement.

Jamie, who is a Socialist member of Parliament and who has worked for thirty years in the mines of Ayrshire, has just got himself a job that for 243 years has been held exclusively by men of rank and title. He has been appointed Lord High Commissioner to the Church of Scotland, an appointment hitherto given only to a peer.

Hereafter, so long as he holds the job, Jamie will be known as "His Grace." Mrs. Brown, who was a mill girl when Jamie married her thirty-two years ago, will be "Her Grace."

Ever since Jamie and Mrs. Jamie were married they have lived in a miner's cottage in Annbants, containing two rooms and a kitchen. The rent for this house is $50 per year.

To Live in Palace

But now Jamie and his "missus" are going to live in Holyrood Palace, at Edinburgh, the storied home of the Stuarts and the official residence of the King of England when he visits the Scottish capital. He is going to get $10,000 a year salary on his new job.

As Lord High Commissioner to the Church of Scotland, Jamie is really the proxy of the king. He is entitled to royal salutes, holds levees just like the king and rides in the state coach, with an escort of soldiers. When he is about the duties of the job he is paid all the honors of royalty.

The duties of the job consist chiefly of presiding at the annual sessions of the Church of Scotland. These sessions are held once a year and last a fortnight. It is during this period that "His Grace" and "Her Grace" will occupy the state apartments at Holyrood.

"His Grace" is not a bit alarmed over the task of filling the shoes worn by illustrious peers since 1643. "Her Grace" is not flustered because she is going to dwell in the castle of the Stuarts. They are both anxious only to get it over with so they can return to their $50-a-year cottage.

"I shall hold levees as representative of the king and shall ride in the state coach," "His Grace" said. "Then at the end I shall return to my cottage, the dearest place on earth to me! I'll be just Jamie Brown, as I've always been.

To Uphold Tradition

"Just because a Socialist and the tenant of a miner's cottage has been given the office does not mean that the old dignities and traditions will be departed from. I'm going to show Scotland—and England as well—that a Socialist and a miner can do things properly and maintain the historic traditions.

"Of course, I'm tremendously proud that I've been chosen, but it will make no difference in my mode of living. The home in the mining village was good enough for me to take my bride to thirty-two years ago, and it's good enough for us now."

"Her Grace" admits that the news of the appointment disconcerted her a bit when she first heard it.

"I gasped when my husband told me," she said, "but I think we'll manage all right. I'm a very proud woman, and this will be an event in our lives. I'm doing nothing at all to prepare myself until Jamie comes home, but he says this is the dearest place in the world to him, and he'll come back to it and live here as happily as ever when he can get away from Holyrood. We have been very happy together and I give Jamie all the credit for making our marriage a success."

LIFE IS MISERABLE

LIMA, Ohio, May 20.—Can a woman be so good a housekeeper as to make life miserable for members of her family?

Common Pleas Judge H. W. Biachly, Van Wert, presiding over the Allen County Common Pleas Court, will be called upon to answer this question. He will affirm, or disagree with, John P. O'Connell, owner of the Erie Hotel, who has answered the question affirmatively.

O'Connell testified that from one house-cleaning time till the next, the kitchen and bedroom were the only places in which he could "stick his nose." He is seeking a divorce from his wife, Ella, who admitted she refused to allow her husband to smoke in the house or spit in the front yard.

BARNUM FORGOTTEN

BETHEL, Conn., May 20.—P. T. Barnum is almost less than a memory in this staid New England village, whose most famous citizen he was, and now local citizens have voted to rip out the memorial that the great showman gave the village when his fame was highest and put up a simple memorial to their veterans of the late war.

Barnum caused a fountain to be erected in the heart of the village, and for years citizens watched artificial dolphins squirt water high in air to drop into a circular basin. Tiring at length, they let the fountain leak and rust and fall into decay until only the huge basin was left, full of water only after a rain and a breeding place for mosquitoes.

CLEAN UP VERA CRUZ

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, May 20.—Vera Cruz, once the pestilence spot of the Mexican gulf, with the buzzards constituting its only sanitary service, has in the few years since the American occupation in 1914 wiped out its unfavorable reputation. Buzzards are still to be seen, but they eke out a meager livelihood from the few scraps that gain their way to the streets.

Three million houses will be built in London within fifteen years, say contractors.

Graham Crackers

A wayward girl told a judge that she drank liquor at parties because the custom was supposed to stamp one as having a fashionable polish. This must be some of that liquid veneer we see advertised so much.

It has always been supposed that sand was not fertile enough to raise anything, but certain kinds of politicians can give the farmers tips on intensive planting. Down at Manhattan Beach they planted some liquor in such a fertile place that it raised a fine crop of grand jury indictments.

From a newspaper story of a divorce case: The wife says her husband earns $1000 per month. She asks for $150 alimony per week.

"Big Prosperity Wave Assured," the headline sings. Let us hope that it is one of those permanent waves.

A strong indication of prosperity is seen in this headline from the market page: "Onion Crop Is Excellent."

PLANS FOR BOYS' CAMP ON ISLAND ARE ANNOUNCED

Hundred Youths to Go from Here; to Spend Eleven Days at Catalina

One hundred Glendale boys will be taken to the Y. M. C. A. summer camp on Catalina Island, which opens on July 3, states Rex B. Kelley, head of the Y. M. C. A. in Glendale. The camp will be open eleven days and the cost of the entire trip has been set at fifteen dollars. He announces that one does not have to belong to the organization to take advantage of this opportunity.

Some of the facilities offered the boys at the camp are a private launch, rowboats, raft and raft line, private cove and beach for swimming and bathing, two colored chefs, a cookhouse, and tents. From the local Y. M. C. A. there will attend a physical director, a religious director, and a doctor. Many other men plan to go as assistants and tent leaders. There will be one man to every seven boys.

The camp is situated three miles below Avalon, near Moonstone Beach. All boys accompanying the party must be at least eleven years old, according to Mr. Kelley. Registration can be made at the local Y. M. C. A. headquarters, over Roberts and Echols' drug store at Brand and Broadway.

Articles Necessary

Mr. Kelley gives out the following list of articles as necessary equipment for the eleven days at camp; several changes of outing clothes, two pairs of shoes, caps, hats, coats, etc., a comb, a copy of the Bible or New Testament, toothpaste, soap, blankets and bedding and towels. He also advises the boys to bring musical instruments, knives, pencils, writing paper, and kodaks if they are able.

Last year about 150 boys went to the Catalina camp from Glendale, but Mr. Kelley does not wish to have such a large delegation this year. For this reason the number has been limited to 100, and he urges that boys wishing to go, sign up as soon as possible.

Daily Program

Each camp day will start with calisthenics, followed by wash time, flag raising, and inspection. After inspection all will eat breakfast and immediately afterward there will be a period devoted to bible study. During the remainder of the morning the boys will be occupied with various activities and duties.

While at camp the boys will do their own kitchen work, a different tent being chosen each day to do "kitchen police." Dinner will be served at 12 o'clock and between 12:30 and 1 everyone will also be assigned to provide the evening program for each night, when the boys assemble around the campfire.

In addition to the regular daily activities, the leaders have planned a treasure hunt to last through a whole day. A full program that will keep everyone busy from breakfast to taps has been arranged.

Prospects For Prosperous Summer Excellent; Great Number Tourists Arriving

Southern California like the proverbial rubber ball comes back with a bound! A month ago it was down with the foot and mouth hysteria—mostly mouth, but today it's back to normal.

Three thousand tourists arrived in Los Angeles Sunday. Two thousand more arrived Monday. Ten thousand will be here by the end of the week. And the season has just begun!

All lines of traffic Sunday hit a new peak of congestion. Every available piece of motor stage equipment was in service. The Pacific Electric could not handle the crowds to the beaches. The mountain resorts filled up like magic. Real estate excursions were patronized 100 per cent.

Optimism, yes, pep-tomism, prevails today in the southland. The prospects for a most prosperous summer never were better. Bankers report that money to loan on improved property is plentiful. Rents are reasonable, according to the real estate men. Property priced right is moving quickly. The building trades are busy.

And that isn't all. Bond issues totalling $20,000,000 are being floated by southland cities this summer and the money is already being pushed into circulation. Excellent conditions in the film, fish, vegetable, oil, mineral and fruit lines are reported. True, the cattle and grain men are sorely pressed, but that soon will be past history.

"Full speed ahead" is the watchword for business men and builders who carefully note conditions. The upturn of southern California will be the most remarkable business achievement of America this summer.

DE MOLAYS PLAN TO STAGE DANCE

Members Glendale Chapter To Hold Sport Affair At Country Club

Glendale Chapter, Order of De Molay, will hold its second dance at the Oakmont Country club on Friday night, May 23. C. G. Farrow of 214 West Doran street, is in charge of the entertainment committee.

The dance will be strictly a sport affair and members have been requested to wear sport clothes. Only members of the De Molay and Master Masons are admitted to the De Molay dances. The Oakmont Country club dance orchestra will furnish the music for the occasion.

Invitations have been sent to other Southern California chapters to attend the dance and the committee is planning on an attendance of over 100 couples.

METHODISTS WILL HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Big Event Is Scheduled for Next Thursday Night At Casa Verdugo

Methodists from Glendale, Burbank, Montrose and Eagle Rock are to be guests Thursday night at an open house affair at the Casa Verdugo Methodist Episcopal church. Plans are being made for serving dinner for 300.

This meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Methodist social union, formed some months ago. It is of special significance following the action last week in Springfield, Mass., where the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church passed by a unanimous vote the provision submitted for the union of this church and the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

On Thursday night a large delegation is expected from the Broadway Methodist Episcopal church, South.

Nathan Newby of Hollywood, prominent attorney, and longtime leader in the religious work of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, will be honored speaker.

Members of the committee are Dr. Joseph Marple, Mrs. Virginia Freeman, Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, Mrs. W. A. Kulp and Myron Carman.

Work was continued last night on Cowan's "The Rose Maiden." During intermission Mrs. Florence Carman Richardson played "Love Dream" (Liszt) and "Revolutionary Etude" (Chopin). Mrs. Richardson, who is a sister of Myron Carman Glendale baritone, came recently from Berea college, where she was head of the music department. She is a pupil of Harry Rowe Shelley.

At the meeting of the club next Tuesday there will be a social affair following a short rehearsal. The committee arranging the evening includes Mrs. Zeigler, Miss Armstrong, Mr. Frahm, Mr. Davidson, Mr. Whitaker and Mr. Yard.

STOCK REDUCING SALE ATTRACTIVE

Many Taking Advantage of Reduced Prices Now at Webb's Men's Store

The stock reducing sale now in progress at the H. S. Webb's Men's store on South Brand boulevard at Broadway is proving a most gratifying sales event, according to reports.

Launched last Friday the sale proved so popular the first day that the store was literally packed and it was necessary to engage additional salesmen on Saturday.

The various nationally known lines carried by the Webb store are always greatly in demand, and, with special offerings in every line and department, Glendale men are having a real opportunity to shop at reduced prices. Announcement is made that the sale will continue until the end of the month of May.

Advertisements of the sale are appearing exclusively in The Glendale Evening News.

Secretary Eugene F. Sanders of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce last night addressed the Ventura chamber on "The Retaliation of the Individual to the Chamber of Commerce." The meeting, which was the regular monthly gathering of the body, was held at the Piedmont Inn, President Wilde presiding. It had for its chief object the arousing of interest prior to the regular yearly budget drive, which this year has been set at $15,000.

Two years ago Mr. Sanders was present at the organization of the Ventura Chamber of Commerce. It started with eight members, he states, and now numbers over 300. The Glendale chamber, with approximately 800 members, raises an annual budget of close to $30,000.

EIGHT FORTUNE TELLERS TO BE AT GARDEN FETE

Novelty Dolls to Be Shown by Originators; Three Given as Prizes

The Goddess of Destiny is to be honored guest Saturday at the garden fete given by the Tuesday Afternoon club at the L. C. Brand estate. According to Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker, in charge of the mystic booth, she will be seen among the carnival throngs in many disguises.

Mrs. Ocker has been fortunate in securing eight talented fortune tellers, who will be on the grounds from the time the fete opens till the witching hour of midnight. These will be assisted by many other people, with a clever gift for reading the past and predicting the future.

A Hindu mystic, a palmist and Miss Erna Anker-Holth and her sister, Mrs. Val Ruel, originators of the clever fortune telling dolls, will be on hand in the fortune telling booth.

Fortune Telling Doll

Of special interest is this fortune telling doll, which is proving most popular at dinner parties and other social functions.

It is a novelty conceived and executed by Miss Anker-Holth, who has just returned from a two year sojourn in the art colony in Paris. This quaint litfle "fortune woman" who carries fortune telling cards in a cleverly arranged skirt of paper, has been named "Sibyl," after the famous oracle of mythology, who persuaded Apollo to grant her "as many birthdays as there are grains of sand in my hand."

In addition to having these dolls on sale at bargain prices at the fete, Miss Anker-Holth and Mrs. Val Ruel will offer three as prizes. Everyone having a fortune told will receive a ticket and the holder of the ticket bearing a lucky number will receive one of the dolls.

BOARD EXPLAINS NEED OF LARGER PUBLIC LIBRARY

Proposed Bond Issue Topic At Meeting Called to Discuss Campaign

Citizens from all sections of the city, representing many different organizations, responded to special invitations to meet with the library board last night at the Public Library and discuss the proposed bond issue for the purpose of raising funds for erection of much-needed library buildings.

T. M. Preston, president of the library board, addressed the audience on the present crying need of room at the institution, and the unsatisfactory conditions at the branch library in South Glendale, and the cramped quarters of the Grand View branch. He also gave estimates of the amount that would be required to be raised by a bond issue to make it possible to erect a building adequate for present needs and for years to come.

Explains Needs

Of the proposed total amount of $47,000, it was estimated that $10,000 would be ample for a building for the northwest section, in addition to $5000 on hand that was appropriated by the City Council; $32,500 will be sufficient for a building to be erected on the rear of the grounds of the library site, and $500 for improvements in the branch library in South Glendale for immediate needs, as the Council has under consideration a plan that will result in a new building in that section in the near future.

Mr. Preston reported that he had gone before the City Council and asked that a special election be called for the purpose of issuing these bonds.

Arthur J. Lindley, architect, spoke on tentative plans for new buildings and displayed sketches and prints.

Share in Discussion

Others who spoke briefly were Alexander Mitchell of the Foothill Improvement association; Charles H. Cushing, librarian of the south Branch; Mrs. Alma Danforth, city librarian; Mrs. Charles Barker of South Glendale; Mrs. A. H. Brown of the Parent-Teacher association, and Rev. C. A. Calderwood. Many others took part in discussion.

A motion made by Alex Mitchell to the effect that a committee of three be appointed to go before the City Council and present a request for the calling of an early election for the bond issue was carried unanimously.

Those appointed were Mrs. Roy A. Ballagh, Alex Mitchell and Rev. W. E. Edmonds.

At the close of the meeting, light refreshments were served by the young women of the library force.

Character Building

The habit of thrift may seem a purely practical thing, and yet it has more influence upon CHARACTER building than most other things. One who is continually afflicted with worry about tomorrow and possibly with debts that he is not sure he can pay when due, has not the inclination to have higher and happier thoughts.

There are few things that will generate a feeling of self-respect more than accumulated surplus taken out of earnings and reserved for possible less fortunate times. Nothing else can give one the feeling of independence and worthiness that comes from the knowledge that the work of past years has something to show for it. No head is held so high, no eye looks out upon the world with such confidence as those that belong to one who has realized that his duty is not fully performed in providing for today. There is a tomorrow for everyone. It may be good or it may be bad. If it is a good tomorrow, he will have greater happiness from it if he has saved a part of his earnings. If it is a bad one, he will be prepared to meet it.

This bank has a moral obligation to the community of inducing every citizen, young and old, to save a part of what he earns. We want everyone in this city to be the better citizen that he can be with comparative financial independence.

FACTS ABOUT BONUS MEASURE

The bonus fight is over. The five-year "war" to provide a bonus for America's World war veterans ended yesterday when the Senate passed the bonus bill over the president's veto, with a margin of two votes. The vote was 59 to 26, a two-thirds vote being necessary to carry it over the veto. Eight times in the last four years the House has passed a bonus bill—twice over a presidential veto. The Senate has acted six times, passing a bill five times and sustaining President Harding's veto once. The first bonus bill was passed by the House on May 29, 1920, by a vote of 289 to 92. Twice it passed a bonus bill without a record vote.

The staggering task faced by the war department in order to comply with the provisions of the adjusted compensation act, which became a law today finds the department with its sleeves rolled up and ready for the job.

It is expected that 5,250,000 applications will be received for the bonus. An extra force of 2800 clerks, in addition to the 200 regular clerks, has been put to work, and two months will be spent by them in organizing and training before the first application blank is handled. Seven thousand and seventy-six filing cases of records will be used in connection with the checking of applications. These cases would form a line two miles in length, if placed side by side, and cover 2.6 acres of floor space. The cases, with contents, weigh 1080 tons and would fill fifty-four freight cars. They contain about 167,000,000 documents.

This work was started by the war department in the spring of 1922, when Major-General Robert S. Davis, the present adjutant-general of the army, was assigned to the task of planning the machinery of the work in case the bill passed. At that time 340,000 records were incomplete, and work was immediately started to supply the missing data, so that today every record has been completed as far as is necessary. Officers who handled records in the war department, in France and at ports of embarkation, were selected for the key positions and have during the two years made a deep study of the situation, with the result that a smooth-running machine is ready today to eat up the work.

The following figures indicate the magnitude of the task and many of the considerations that will enter into a determination of the amount of the compensation:

Approximate number of men expected to make claim, although many are ineligible due to rejection and other causes	5,250,000
Number of men finally accepted and who performed military service	4,051,600
Number of men who performed both home and overseas service	2,057,907
Number of men who performed domestic service only	1,993,699
Average number of days per man of overseas service of those men who served both overseas and at home	312
Average number of days per man of home service of those who served both overseas and at home	174
Average number of days per man of service of those men who served at home only	228
Average number of days per man of service of those men who served more than sixty days, but less than 111 days	84
Percentage of men who performed domestic service only who served sixty days or less (all men serving overseas served more than sixty days)	8.5
Percentage of men who performed domestic service only who served more than sixty days and less than 111 days (all men serving overseas served more than 111 days)	14
Number of men performing overseas service, but excluded from benefit of act	115,274
Number of men performing home service only, but excluded from benefit of act	404,822
Number of men who will receive cash payment (the average length or service per man is eighty-four days' home service)	279,117
Number of men with home service only who will receive bonus certificates (average of 228 days' service)	1,309,760
Number of men with both home and overseas service who will receive bonus certificates (the average length of service is 486 days, with average per man of 312 days' overseas service and 174 days' home service)	1,942,633

The process for receiving and checking each application is as follows: It will first reach a receiving station, from whence a card is sent notifying an applicant of its receipt. Thence it will go to the examiners, who will check up to see if all required information has been furnished.

If the application is incomplete it will be forwarded to a correction section, which will enter into correspondence with the individual. If a preliminary examination shows the application to be complete it will next pass to the file section, where the records are kept, and where it will be checked against the records. If there is a discrepancy notations will be made to the trouble division, where further checkings will be made by elaborate and careful investigation among all records of the war department—those of the organization in which the individual served, casualty records, selective service records, fingerprints, muster rolls.

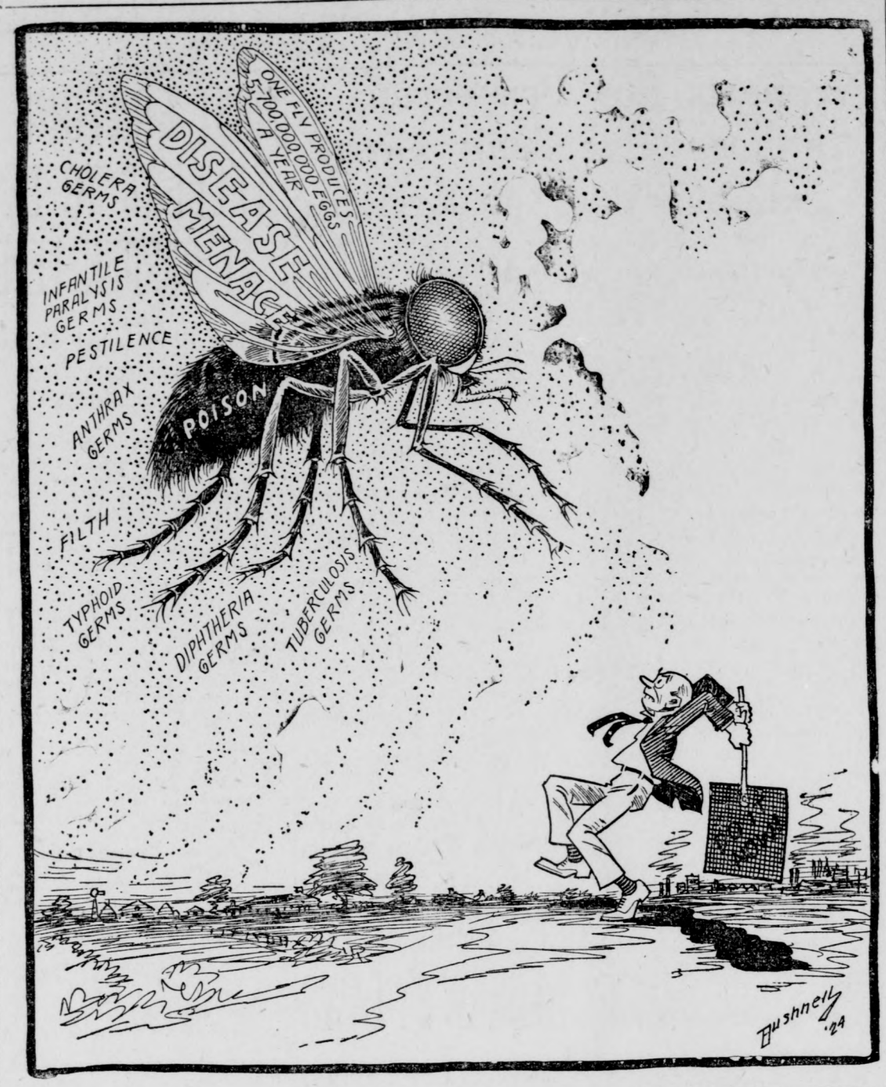
Final determination will be made and the application will go to typists, who will prepare certificates required by law to be furnished the Veterans' Bureau. It will then be forwarded and checked by reviewers. Then it will be placed in the files, and the certificates for the Veterans' Bureau sent to a computing division, where the adjusted service credit will be determined in dollars and cents. Thence the certificate will be passed to a section to authenticate it, after which it will be detached and forwarded to the Director of the Veterans' Bureau for extension by him. A portion of the original application will be checked with fingerprints and then forwarded to the Veterans' Bureau.

At first the output will be small, but ultimately it is assumed that a peak of 70,000 certificates a day will be attained. Based on the average of 30,000 certificates a day, the process should be completed in about nine months, if applicants are prompt in preparation of their blanks.

Upon the war department immediately devolves the task of distributing the application blanks to the more than four million men scattered all over the country and the world. The blanks are now in the hands of the government printing office. Arrangements have been made to distribute them through the postoffice department, the American Legion and various military headquarters and civic societies. The blanks will contain about twenty questions, and, to avoid cost to the applicants, oaths have been avoided as far as practicable.

Fingerprints records are required on the blanks to protect veterans and their dependents from forged applications and to provide a positive means of identification. Veterans need not write for the blanks, it is stated at the war department, as they will be distributed to all. They are also urged not to write to the war department for information as to records, but to supply it from memory, as a flood of such requests would delay the cases by a double search. The great responsibility confronting the department is realized in the fact that its action forms the basis for the expenditure by the government of an amount variously estimated at from two to four billion dollars.

MANKIND'S WORST ENEMY



Gloom Carriers

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Our authoritative medicine men declare that certain people are "typhoid germ carriers." That means that while they do not have typhoid themselves they carry the germs about their person and communicate them to other people, hence they are a danger to public health.

Alphonse Cotils, a robust Belgian with rosy cheeks and apparent good health, conducted a bakeshop in New York. The Board of Health had him up before the municipal court and the judge decided that he must keep away from the shop, that he could not handle breadstuffs, nor even sit at the cash register and make change for customers.

The reason for this was that, although it was some eighteen years ago that he had typhoid fever and was apparently cured, he was a typhoid germ carrier and should not be allowed to handle foodstuffs.

It came out in the trial that there are now some 119 persons being regularly inspected as carriers. One case cited was that of "Typhoid" Mary Fallon, who, several years ago, was adjudged a carrier. She had been employed as a domestic. She was ordered to choose some other line of work. Dr. Blau said that "Typhoid" Mary, under an assumed name, became a servant in the kitchen of a hospital. After an epidemic of typhoid there the woman was identified as a carrier and, having broken the rule laid down by the sanitary code, she was given a sentence of "enforced supervision" for several years.

This all seems fair enough. The public health must be preserved, but, after all, we are not mere animals with bodies; we are spirits with minds.

And, if the authorities look so carefully after those who carry germs that would destroy our bodies, why cannot someone look out for those souls who carry germs that bring disease to our spirits?

The health of the spirit of man may fairly be gauged by his courage, his cheer and his altruistic impulses.

The spiritual diseases known as fear, cynicism, pessimism, despair and other varieties of gloom, spoil quite as many lives as typhoid fever, cancer and malaria. Out of a dozen new books that come to my desk there is an average of about four or five that are gloom spreaders If their net effect is to do anything but to make one sick, I do not know what it is.

I am opposed to censorship, as a general principle, that is, I am opposed to anyone being censor but me.

And I personally censor every book I open. I do not ask that the book be pious nor "nice," nor even truthful. Lies, if you extend the definition of the word to include all fiction, are sometimes entertaining and even stimulating, and some stories that are rough, worldly and even naughty are not without their uses.

But a book written plainly under the influence of indigestion, an article in a newspaper or magazine that is manifestly an eructation of envy or the irritated squirm of the inferiority complex, or any sort of writing that aims to attract attention by its flavor of slander, I cannot stomach.

Myself, and all my fellow human beings, are engaged in the business of living and all around us are the enemies of life, things that depress and alarm and discourage. And I do not like to do business with the enemy.

TRAINING FOR FARM
(From Santa Barbara News)

The student body of the college of agriculture at Davis, branch of the University of California, have come to the conclusion that they need more women in the college as well as on the farms.

For this reason they have petitioned the President of the university to use his influence to have placed in the college curriculum courses on home economics and domestic science.

The plea of the students for development of the co-educational principle at the Davis farm bases the appeal on the ground "that the farm is a partnership concern for which women must be trained as well as men."

In laying out the work of the state college at Davis, the state university officials seem to have overlooked the axiomatic statements included in the appeal of the men students at "the farm." Or possibly they hold to the view that the sort of training required to prepare a woman for life on a farm could be secured as well in other places.

While the plea of the students has back of it some hard common sense, and recognizes the principle that untrained city bred women are not likely to find farm life congenial, their appeal is founded in a not unnatural desire for an increase in the social life of the college.

Few women students attend the college, chiefly because there is little to take them there and if they do go, unless they are interested in the actual farm problems there is no provision for them in the class rooms.

If the university farm is to serve its highest purpose in assisting in the development of the state farms it would seem that the university authorities could not do better than to add courses on domestic science as applied to the farmer's life.

If training is profitable for the farmer, why may not it assist also the woman who may be the farmer's wife?

REPUTABILITY NEEDED
(From Pasadena Star-News)

Politics, truth to say, is at low ebb in this country. The people, grown intelligent by constant reading of the newspaper press, books and magazines, perceive the hypocrisies and the demagogeries of many of those who, for selfish reasons, make politics a profession. The widespread dissatisfaction and disgust with politics and political methods have engendered a spirit of indifference among the responsible citizenry of the country that bodes ill. It is true that this decadence in political methods is not sufficient excuse for indifference on the part of good citizens. Instead of becoming indifferent, good citizens should become more zealous in their political activities—should redouble their reformative energies to make political methods what they should be.

There is a sure way to make politics more reputable. The panacea rests with the masses of responsible, good-intentioned citizens of the country. They—and they alone—can lift the political life of the nation to higher plane and to better purpose. They cannot do this by ignoring politics, or by being indifferent to political activities.

THE QUESTION OF FOOD
(From San Francisco Chronicle)

Two-thirds of the people of the world live in countries bordering on the Pacific, and it is coming to be a question of what they shall all eat. In many countries it is already coming to be a question which is hard to answer. The time may come when it will be perplexing to everybody.

There is to be held a food conservation congress at Honolulu from July 31 to August 15 next, to which President Coolidge, honorary president of the congress, will send a personal representative bearing a paper contributed to the congress by the President of the Republic who himself comes from a section of our country whose inhabitants have to be partially fed from outside.

Enthusiasts in incipient starvation hold and declare that the world must as rapidly as possible increase its food production by two or three times. As there are few great evils without some corresponding good, that statement should bring joy to the downtrodden American farmer, who is in possession of more food than he can eat or sell.

While the present generation and those of the immediate future can be fed from the products of the earth, the food question is, after all, the most important of all question for all the people, everywhere, all the time.

The congress of Honolulu is recognized as a very important gathering. It will not be a huge popular outpouring, but it will be attended by many of the most distinguished scientists of this and many other countries.

Worth While Verse

MORNING

The lark now leaves his watery nest,
And climbing shakes his dewy wings,
He takes your window for the east,
And to implore your light, he sings;
Awake, awake, the morn will never rise
'Till she can dress her beauty at your eyes.

The merchant bows unto the seaman's star,
The ploughman from the sun his season takes;
But still the lover wonders what they are,
Who look for day before his mistress wakes;
Awake, awake, break through your veils of lawn!
Then draw your curtains and begin the dawn.

The People —of— Anytown

Character Sketches

Never did Anytown mourn so deeply and sincerely as when old Dr. John Elliott died some years ago. You must remember him, for you lived in Anytown and he was our only physician for upwards of forty years. If anyone ever lived a life of service it was he. He gave himself and his life to Anytown and all he ever got in return was a meager living. No, I won't say that, for he had the respect and the love of everyone in Anytown, and who can say that he did not value that?

To a stranger, Dr. Elliott would have seemed gruff and ill-natured but we in Anytown knew him to be gentle and benignant. It was just his manner to have little to say and to be abrupt in saying it. I sometimes thought he did this to hide his real feelings, for he sympathized very deeply with suffering, although he saw much of it.

Dr. Elliott was tall and stooped and walked with a long stride. He and his little black case were a real and vital part of Anytown. The old, high buggy and Nell, the white mare he drove when he went into the country around Anytown, were almost as well-known as he.

We had no secrets from Dr. Elliott. He brought us into the world and he kept his fingers on our pulse from then until he closed our eyes at last. He practiced before the days of the X-ray, but he didn't need any such contrivance, for he was as familiar with our interiors as we were with the streets of Anytown. He seemed to know instinctively when old Mrs. Burns' rheumatism was worse; he could tell the exact state of Mayor Caswell's liver by looking into his face; he could feel it when poor little Alice Wells needed him. No one ever tried to fool Dr. Elliott. The women of Anytown never feigned illness in order to be sent away for a rest. If they had thought of it they would have feared Dr. Elliott's sharp tongue too much to try it.

Dr. Elliott was a poor business man. He and his wife lived in the brick house at the end of Maple street. The house had a "run-down" appearance as long as I can remember. His wife always complained that she had to practice the strictest economy and that the doctor was killing himself because the people of Anytown did not pay their bills. You paid if you could and wanted to and if you didn't nothing was ever said about it. I doubt if Dr. Elliott ever kept any books but his wife always remembered who owed him and how much.

Old Dr. Elliott was one of the finest of the type of country doctor so common forty or fifty years and more ago. It is worth something to have known such a man and to have the momory of him in this age of cold business is refreshing. The people of Anytown may not have paid him in money as they should, but they learned to love him and they still revere his memory.

The After House

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

THE STORY

Dr. Ralph Leslie, just graduated from medical college, ships on the yacht Ella as deck steward. He is penniless and thinks this will be a good opportunity to recuperate from an attack of typhoid fever. Marshall Turner is the owner. His wife, her sister Elsa, a divorcee named Mrs. Johns, and a man named Vail are the passengers. There is a crew of fourteen, including the stewardess, a maid, the cook and Williams, the butler. Charlie Jones, a German sailor with a bent for religion, is friendly to Leslie. Captain Richardson and Turner have an argument over running the ship. Turner, drunk, appoints Singleton captain. Richardson knocks Singleton down. Mrs. Johns asks Leslie to sleep near the passengers' staterooms, in a pantry, as she is afraid of trouble. One night Schwartz, the second mate, disappears overboard, though nobody sees him jump. On the night of August 12 Leslie wakes in the pantry to find himself locked in. Vail, Captain Richardson and the Maid, Karen, are found murdered with an axe. The men put Leslie in charge, and they decide to head back to port. The axe is found where it was flung into the stewardess' berth. She says that Karen had been roused by a bell in the night, she thought Mrs. Turner's, but Mrs. Turner says she did not ring. Karen told the stewardess she thought Turner, who had annoyed her, was outside the door. She opened the door, screamed and fell dead. Mrs. Sloane said she saw a figure in white in the door throw the axe toward her. The crew imprisons Singleton. Leslie and Burns share responsibility for keeping discipline. They lock the axe in the captain's cabin and Leslie takes the key. They put the bodies in a lifeboat. Leslie sees Elsa pick up the pantry key in Turner's room. She tries to throw it into the sea, but Leslie sees her and she gives it to him. At night Adams, in the crow's-nest, says he has seen a white figure crawling along the deck. He hurls down a marlinespike, which disappears, but is found next day fastened over the side of the ship. Then one night Burns is knocked unconscious, the key is taken from his neck, the captain's cabin is opened and the axe disappears, with its sure evidence of finger-prints. The Ella docks at Philadelphia, where MacWhirter, Leslie's friend and classmate, meets him. Singleton is put on trial for murder. The different members of the crew and the passengers are questioned.

XXVI—TURNER'S STORY

"Your name?"

"Marshall Benedict Turner."

"Your residence?"

"—West 106th street, New York City."

"Your occupation?"

"Member of the firm of L. Turner's Sons, shipowners. In the coast trade."

"Do you own the yacht Ella?"

"Yes."

"Do you recognize this chart?"

"Yes. It is the chart of the after house of the Ella."

"Will you show where your room is on the drawing?"

"Here."

"And Mr. Vail's?"

"Next, connecting through a bathroom."

"Where was Mr. Vail's bed on the chart?"

"Here, against the storeroom wall."

"With your knowledge of the ship and its partitions, do you think that a crime could be committed, a crime of the violent nature of this one, without making a great deal of noise and being heard in the storeroom?"

Violent opposition developing to this question, it was changed in form and broken up. Eventually, Turner answered that the partitions were heavy and he thought it possible.

"Were the connecting doors between your room and Mr. Vail's generally locked at night?"

"Yes. Not always."

"Were they locked on this particular night?"

"I don't remember."

"When did you see Mr. Vail last?"

"At midnight, or about that. I —I was not well. He went with me to my room."

"What were your relations with Mr. Vail?"

"We were old friends."

"Did you hear any sounds in Mr. Vail's cabin that night?"

"None. But, as I say, I was—ill. I might not have noticed."

"Did you leave your cabin that night of August 11 or early morning of the 12th?"

"Not that I remember."

"The steersman has testified to seeing you, without your coat, in the chart-room, at two o'clock. Were you there?"

"I may have been—I think not."

"Why do you say you 'may have been—I think not'?"

"I was ill. The next day I was delirious. I remember almost nothing of that time."

"Did you know the woman Karen Hansen?"

"Only as a maid in my wife's employ."

"Did you hear the crash when Leslie broke down the door of the storeroom?"

"No. I was in a sort of stupor."

"Did you know the prisoner before you employed him on the Ella?"

"Yes; he had been in our employ several times."

"What was his reputation—I mean, as a ship's officer?"

"Good."

"Do you recall the night of the 31st of July?"

"Quite well."

"Please tell what you know about it."

"I had asked Mr. Singleton below to have a drink with me. Captain Richardson came below and ordered him on deck. They had words, and he knocked Singleton down."

"Did you hear the mate threaten to 'get' the captain, then or later?"

"He may have made some such threat."

"Is there a bell in your cabin connecting with the maids' cabin off the chart-room?"

"No. My bell rang in the room back of the galley, where Williams slept. The boat was small, and I left my man at home. Williams looked after me."

"Where did the bell from Mr. Vail's room ring?"

"In the maids' room. Mr. Vail's room was designed for Mrs. Turner. When we asked Mrs. Johns to go with us, Mrs. Turner gave Vail her room. It was a question of baths."

"Did you ring any bell during the night?"

"No."

"Knowing the relation of the bell above Mr. Vail's berth to the bed itself, do you think he could have reached it after his injury?"

(Slowly.) "After what the doctor has said, no; he would have had to raise himself and reach up."

The cross-examination was brief but to the point:

"What do you mean by 'ill'?"

"That night I had been somewhat ill: the next day I was in bad shape."

"Did you know the woman Karen Hansen before your wife employed her?"

"No."

"A previous witness has said that the Hansen woman, starting out of her room, saw you outside and retreated. Were you outside the door at any time during that night?"

"Only before midnight."

"You said you 'might have been' in the chart-room at two o'clock."

"I have said I was ill. I might have done almost anything."

"That is exactly what we are getting at, Mr. Turner. Going back to the 30th of July, when you were not ill, did you have any words with the captain?"

"We had a few. He was exceeding his authority."

"Do you recall what you said?"

"I was indignant."

"Think again, Mr. Turner. If you cannot recall, some one else will."

"I threatened to dismiss him and put the first mate in his place. I was angry, naturally."

"And what did the captain reply?"

"He made an absurd threat to put me in irons."

"What were your relations after that?"

"They were strained. We simply avoided each other."

"Just a few more questions, Mr. Turner, and I shall not detain you. Do you carry a key to the emergency case in the forward house, the case that contained the axe?"

Like many of the questions, this was disputed hotly. It was finally allowed, and Turner admitted that he carried the key. Similar cases were carried on all the Turner boats, and he had such a key on his ring.

"Did you ever see the white object that terrified the crew?"

"Never. Sailors are particularly liable to such—hysteria."

"During your delirium, did you ever see such a figure?"

"I do not recall any details of that part of my illness."

"Were you in favor of bringing the bodies back to port?"

"I—yes, certainly."

"Do you recall going on deck the morning after the murders were discovered?"

"Vaguely."

"What were the men doing at that time?"

"I believe—really, I do not like to repeat so often that I was ill that day."

"Have you any recollection of what you said to the men at that time?"

"None."

"Let me refresh your memory from the ship's log:

(Reading.) "'Mr. Turner insisted that the bodies be buried at sea, and, on the crew opposing this, retired to his cabin, announcing that he considered the attitude of the men a mutiny.'"

"I recall being angry at the men —not much else. My position was rational enough, however. It was midsummer, and we had a long voyage before us."

"I wish to read something else to you. The witness Leslie testified to sleeping in the storeroom, at the request of Mrs. Johns" (reading), "'giving as her reason a fear of something going wrong as there was trouble between Mr. Turner and the captain.'"

Whatever question Mr. Goldstein had been framing, he was not permitted to use this part of the record. The log was admissible only as a record on the spot, made by a competent person and witnessed by all concerned, of the actual occurrences on the Ella. My record of Mrs. John's remark was ruled out; Turner was not on trial.

Ship Hits Bank But Is Able to Proceed

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 20.—Word of a mishap to the steamship Tritonia, bound from Alberni canal to United States points with ore, was received from Esquimalt. Steaming slowly through a dense fog with high seas running the Tritonia touched near the entrance to the canal. She was able to get off with her own engines after waiting for high tide, but was leaking on the run down the coast of Vancouver island.

NORTH IRELAND LINEN TRADE IS BOOMING AGAIN

Raw Materials Now Bought Regardless of Price; Reject Contracts

BELFAST, May 18.—Belfast trade is booming again. Business conditions in Northern Ireland metropolis are declared in trade circles to be better than they have been in many years.

During recent years the world's general poverty, together with adverse American tariffs, has nearly ruined the Irish linens trade. A year ago half of Belfast's mills were working with greatly reduced forces and scarcely half-time working hours. Financial reserves of the factories were perilously low, and banks were refusing further advances.

But now the wheel of fortune has turned again, and linen unexpectedly is again enthroned. How long the linen boom will last depends chiefly on raw material supplies. Flax is no more inexhaustible than cotton. A collateral factor will be the prices of the two rival fabrics. If cotton quotations recede linen loses comparatively; if linen prices soar cotton stands to win again. Indications are, however, that the boom will be sufficiently prolonged to enable the linen trade to recoup its years of losses.

Solid facts prove the present prosperity of the trade. Exports so far this year are millions of yards above the corresponding period of 1923. Twice as much flax has been consumed as during the first three months of last year. Supplies of raw flax are being bought by the mills without regard to price.

Yarns, in turn, are being rushed to the weavers at higher prices. Buyers, even those willing to wait a year for their goods, are finding it difficult to make deals. Many firms are already so far committed that they are declining new business at any price, although quotations have increased from 10 to 20 per cent within the last fortnight.

Davis Raps Informants Of Councilman Kimlin

In published accounts of the meeting of the City Council yesterday relative to the granting of a permit to a tent show at Brand and California, Councilman Sam Davis was quoted as saying that Councilman C. E. Kimlin was not telling the truth in regard to a certain portion of the discussion.

"I had absolutely no intention of conveying the impression—if I did—that Councilman Kimlin was not telling the truth," said Councilman Davis today. "Councilman Kimlin is a truthful man. He is the last man in Glendale I would even intimate was not telling the truth. Councilman Kimlin, in all my dealings with him and from what I know about him, is truthful. Therefore, I do not even intimate he was not telling the truth.

"What I had in mind, and what I endeavored to convey, was that certain parties who told Councilman Kimlin the people in the immediate vicinity were opposed to the tent show were the ones telling an untruth.

"I want to make this exceedingly plain to everyone. I certainly do not want the impression to prevail that I believe Councilman Kimlin is not a truthful man. He is truthful. What I wish to convey is that those who told Councilman Kimlin people in the vicinity of the tent show were opposed to the show were the ones not telling the truth, for there is on file at the city clerk's office a petition showing that, with the exception of one property owner, those in the vicinity of the tent show are not opposed to it.

"I hope I have made the matter plain to everyone and that, in the future, no question will be raised."

KANSANS REVIVE BOWLING GREEN

Ancient Game, Forbidden by British King, to Take New Lease on Life

KANSAS CITY, May 20.—Bowling on the green, pronounced unlawful in ancient times and prohibited by law in the reign of Henry VIII, will be introduced in this city by Rev. Charles Rowland Tyner, pastor of St. George's Episcopal church.

The game is played singly or by teams of two or four on outdoor greens. The bowls are made of wood and weigh about four pounds. A small white ball, called the kitty, is placed at one end of the field, and the players, rolling from the opposite end, aim to send their bowls to lie as close to the kitty as possible.

An international tournament, with hundreds of entries, now is held annually at Niagara-on-the-Lake. The game is popular in the summer resorts of northern Ontario.

Ex-Councilman Horn Expresses His Views

W. A. Horn, formerly a member of the City Council, but who resigned, today submitted the following self-explanatory communication:

Editor The Evening News:—I see by the newspaper reports of the "special" meeting of our City Council held yesterday, that the dignity of that office has again been maintained by the hurling of the gentlemanly phrase "——lie" by one councilman at another member of that body, and that in his absence.

Then again, does not the spectacle of how the waving of the magic wand of "a recall" (which in my humble judgment cannot come any too soon for the best interests of our city) bringing forth the desired results, cause a suspicion in the minds of our citizens, and especially to those, who have invested their own money here and are trying to carry on a good and legitimate business, and are paying their share of our taxes, when they see privileges granted to road shows, street fairs and other non-resident and transient interests, who take thousands of dollars out of our city and away from our regular channels of trade.

There is also the question of why commissions and committees of all kinds, affecting some of the minor affairs of the pubic life are appointed or elected, but when it comes to so vital a matter as the spending of $1,600,000 of our money, the dominating influence in our City Council is very much opposed to the appointment of a group of our able and efficient business men to confer and counsel with them.

I hope you will pardon my intrusion but these are but a few of the questions which come to the mind of one who was on the "inside" just long enough to know that he did not want to bear further responsibility of that position under existing circumstances.

Sincerely yours, for the best interest of our fair city,
W. A. HORN.

DIVORCE ABSENT IN EAGLE'S NEST

American People Can Learn from National Bird, Says Professor

CINCINNATI, May 20.—The married life of the American baldeagle presents a model of constancy to the people of the land of which it is the symbol, says Professor F. H. Herrick of Western Reserve university.

But when its mate dies a new marriage is contracted, and the new mate takes up its residence in the old nest, he explained. The same nest may, therefore, be used for a very long time by the successive members of the same family partnership.

Observing Bird Life

One of the most remarkable nests is in the top of a hickory tree in Vermillion, Ore., where it is known to have been inhabited for thirty-three years. In spite of its airy perch, eighty-one feet from the ground, the nest is twelve feet tall and is estimated to weigh about a ton. Here Professor Herrick and an assistant in the last year studied the daily home life of our national bird, and watched the young eaglets growing, learning to fly and then learning swooping and catching sticks until they acquire sufficient dexterity to attack living prey. The birds have thus far been observed for thirty-six complete days, and next spring observations of the younger weeks of the eaglets' life are expected to complete the record of the baldeagle's life activities.

Famed Indian Hunter Buried Like Fathers

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., May 20.—Joe Jim, Ute Indian hunter, has gone to the happy hunting grounds in a casket of skins tanned by his own hands.

He was buried at Palisade, near here.

The old Indian was buried in the case of skins, patterned after the Indian casket, in accordance with his dying request.

Joe Jim spent his entire life in eastern Utah and western Colorado. He had seen the advance of civilization from the time the Indian lived off herds of deer and antelope to the time of great highways, railroads, airplanes and radio.

OLD, BUT ACTIVE

BRIDGEPORT, Ohio, May 20.—Distinction of being the oldest active newspaper compositor in the United States, is claimed by her friends for Mrs. Tillie Ring Hodge, 80, of Tiskilwa, Ill., a native of this (Belmont) county.

Mrs. Hodge works four full days each week in the office of the Tiskilwa Chief. She is regarded as up to the average in her ability to "stick" type. Born in northeastern Belmont county in 1845, she was taken to Illinois in 1852.

She set type for the Chicago Times, telling of the funeral of Abraham Lincoln. Married to W. R. Hodge, Montgomery, Ala., in 1868, she did not resume her newspaper work until after his death, in 1888.

Why I Am In Glendale

California is a MAGIC word. Of course it means SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

The reasons for COMING to Southern California are too obvious for discussion; why freeze, why roast, why buck snow and mud? My reasons for SETTLING IN GLENDALE after fifteen years in five other Southern California towns are four in number—geographic, financial, social, climatic.

Regarding climate, we are sufficiently near the Pacific to get the cooling afternoon breeze, far enough away to escape the cold, raw wind and the fog. We are east of the dust storms, west of the smudge, sufficiently near the mountains for the unsurpassed view, far enough away to escape the frost and wind.

You can choose a shady homesite or a sunny one, a hill top view or secluded canyon glen. City advantages with charm of country life. Why look further?

Glendale for me and mine—why not for you and yours?

TROTZKY DENIES MEN MOBILIZED UPON WAR BASIS

Future of Europe Depends on Working Classes, Says Commissar

By WILLIAM J. RESWICK
For International News Service.
Copyright 1924.

MOSCOW, May 20.—Leon Trotzky, commissar for war in the soviet government, in a special interview with International News Service denied that the red army is being mobilized upon a war basis. Trotzky pins his hope for the future of Europe upon a "United States of Europe," carried out by the working classes.

The red army chief who has just returned from Southern Russia, where he recuperated his failing health, looks hale and hearty.

The correspondent submitted the following questions to him:

1—What is the basis of the persistent rumor in Europe about mobilizing the red army?

2—What extent of truth is there in statements in the British press that your speech at Tiflis may be construed as an attack against England?

3—In view of the growing aggressiveness in the policy of France and Japan against Russia, (which may result in a new international conflict) do you consider interests of the Russian and American peoples are identical in preventing a world catastrophe?

4—What is your opinion of the claims of the British bankers?

5—What was meant by your Baku statement that war is not outside the range of possibilities?

6—Do you think that radical revision of the Versailles treaty would create a basis for the pacification of Europe?

Trotzky replied:

Demobilizing Class

"As to your first question, it is utter nonsense. Indeed, we are now demobilizing those born in 1901 and are recruiting youths born in 1902. But simultaneously we are turning part of the regular army divisions into militia. This may be the basis of the mobilization rumor.

"As to your second question, I ask whether the British justly viewed my Tiflis speech as an attack against England or more exactly as an attack against Premier Ramsay Macdonald? I am not exactly sure how you interpret 'attack.' Premier Macdonald frequently attacked the soviet system and the tactics of the communist party.

"It is well known that Macdonald's party (British labor party) fiercely attacked us for our policy in Georgia. I am sorry Macdonald cannot visit Georgia to learn the mood of the Georgian workers and peasants.

"I doubt whether the mood of the Indian and Egyptian peasants can compare with that of the Georgian's.

Democracy Above All

"Macdonald frequently accused us of violating the 'methods of formal democracy.' True, we place predominance of the working class above formal democracy but we had the right. I hope that Macdonald and his party place democracy above all.

"All this I pointed out in my speeches at Tiflis and Baku. Does that mean an unfriendly attitude toward England? Does Macdonald's criticism of the soviet system and the communist policy signify an unfriendly attitude toward our country?

"But I cannot see why our disagreements regarding the soviet system with a revolutionary dictatorship and the English monarchy with the church must interfere with our efforts to establish broad economic ties equally useful to both sides.

"Taking your third question, the policy of Japan and that of France are really aggressive, but we see no greater unfriendliness on the part of the United States. It is scarcely possible there would be a severance of the relations between two peoples each numbering over 100,000,000. Responsibility for such a severance would rest wholly with the United States.

Limitation Favored

"Naturally, we are still willing to participate in any international agreement aimed at real limitation of arms to diminish the danger of a new war.

"Regarding your fourth question, my opinion of English bankers is very bad.

"Fifth, my statement at Baku that war involving Russia is generally possible must be understood in the same sense that Russia's amiability and her readiness for economic co-operation, notwithstanding the aggressive and imperialistic 'grab all' policies, do not preclude the danger of war, nor the absence of any such danger. But we do not need armed force.

Looks to Workmen

"Sixth, whether revision of the Versailles treaty will lead to the pacification of Europe depends upon persons and methods. Europe in her present state, has little capacity for revival. The continent seems doomed to economic and military convulsions.

"Only a confederation of the United States of Europe can insure her economic revival with cultural progress. But there is no evidence that the ruling class at present is able to carry out such a program. Only the working class, by assuming power, will unite Europe and save her civilization."

SAYS JURY FEARS TO PUNISH CRIME

Judge Declares Justice Is Not Administered in Numerous Cases

CLEVELAND, May 20.—Crime spreads because juries lack courage to convict, Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh of the Cook county (Chicago) superior court said in an address here recently. "The sword of justice has been stricken from the hand of the blind goddess and she now has only a pair of scales," he declared.

He pointed out that Cleveland in 1923 had 68 murders—as many as were committed in all England and Wales—and that there were during the same year 10,850 homicides in the United States, 8700 of them deliberate murders.

"In Europe," Judge Kavanaugh continued, "punishment follows crime so swiftly the public considers the whole thing one transaction. Here we want to lynch a criminal at first, but five months later we find ourselves relenting.

By Mother's Side

"If you, a business man, are called to try a burglar you picture him as a hulking brute, with vicious features. Yo tell yourself you'll show these judges how a burglar ought to be treated.

"The accused turns out to be a boy, whose old mother sits near him, weeping and protesting his innocence.

"Your heart is touched. You know the man is guilty, but you acquit him to give him another chance.

"Another chance! The judge knows how many chances that boy has had. You have left the judge no leeway and have released another potential murderer.

"We Americans must enforce our minor laws. If we do we will find our major laws taking care of themselves."

Yale Expansion May Hit Historic Spots

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 20.—"Is the old Yale campus doomed?" This question is being asked by undergraduates and alumni alike as Yale heads discuss sweeping changes for which millions of dollars are believed available. Connecticut Hall, wherein Nathan Hale of the class of 1770 had his room, appears to be in danger of destruction as the authorities work on to "Greater Yale" and undergraduate journalists are urging "Yale without Connecticut hall would be hard to picture. With the famous hall would vanish something more than brick and wornout stone. It would be so nice if we could keep the past and have the future."

Turning to a great rival, the journalistic students say: "We are turning young once more, but Harvard is still immemorial and old."

VOLCANO IN ENGLAND

LONDON, May 20.—England at last has an active volcano. And Londoners and others are cheerfully paying 1 shilling 6 pence to witness it in eruption.

The volcano is one of the exhibits of the New Zealand section of the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley Park and is an extraordinarily faithful reproduction of Rotorna volcano in that dominion.

Three or four eruptions daily which delight spectators. There are continuous pools of boiling mud, clouds of steam and a geyser hissing never-ending columns into the air.

ONCE FAMOUS SINGER

LONDON, May 20.—Tragedy stalks the streets of London.

A police officer arrested a masked woman singing on the street in the heart of the business section. Arraigned in court, the woman disclosed her identity. She was Dorothy Ashby, once one of England's greatest operatic sopranos.

STUDY PERIODS IN SCHOOL ARE LONG FOR CHILD

French Tots Are Overworked By Tedious Hours and Short Playtime

By ALICE LANGELIER,
For International News Service.

PARIS, May 20.—French children work too much. Their school hours are very long; they study badly, and their physical education is much neglected—these are the statements made by Dr. Maurice Le Bon, who has been attempting to organize the collaboration of parents, professors and hygienists to the conditions found in French schools.

The average French schoolchild starts out at 7:30 o'clock in the morning and returns home after dark. He must work early and late, for most of his lessons are learned "by heart," and in six years he must know French, one other modern language, Latin, Greek, history of France, general history, geography, philosophy, arithmetic, geometry, algebra, mechanics, physics, chemistry and natural history.

He does not have time enough to sleep. Nine hours are essential for children and adolescents, says Dr. Le Bon, and if they have but seven or eight they go to sleep in class. Eight hours of good work are sufficient for most young people, and five sufice for children under twelve. A law limiting the working hours of factory children has been passed, but the hours for school children have been increased in order to carry out heavy school programs.

Almost every schoolchild is obliged to eat too rapidly. His ablutions are very hasty and his hours for physical exercise very short, seldom more than one-half an hour daily.

"Our growing children," affirms Dr. Le Bon, "are obliged to do intellectual work for six or seven years, to which a full-grown, mature man would not submit. Many of the pupils are filled with such a horror of study that they grow up to dislike it and thus are deprived of one of the pleasantest things in life—enjoyable brain-work."

Get Pay on Own Time, Rule of Denver Force

DENVER, May 20. — "Stack your chips on your own time," is the latest order of the city of Denver to its employes.

Manager of Revenue Clem Collins has announced that employes must call at the city auditor's office for their wages after working hours. The custom has been for years to permit the workers to take time out of their regular work to go to city hall for their pay. The new plan will save the city $10,000 annually, according to Collins.

ON EQUAL FOOTING

LONDON, May 20.—"Women have now gone on to a footing where they can talk to men quite differently," says Lady Torrington, aristocratic woman member of Parliament.

The Duchess of Atholl, also a woman M. P., speaking at the same gathering, remarked that women members of Parliament would not wish men to regard them as peculiar or odd. "We want," she said, "our men colleagues to regard us as very ordinary human beings who wish to work beside them, and we hope that men will forget that we are women, but will think of us as fellow workers."

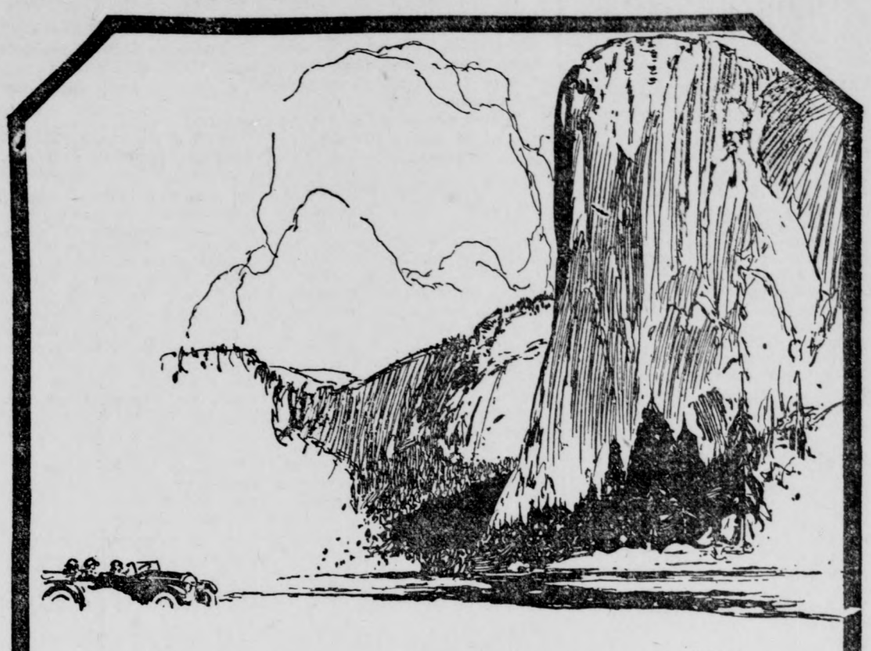
YOSEMITE ECONOMY RUN



SWEEPSTAKES WINNERS

The car using the least gasoline, regardless of classification, was the Overland, Model 92, which made the entire run on 13⅝ gallons of "Red Crown," averaging 29.36 miles to the gallon. The Willys-Knight won second place, averaging 23.53 miles to the gallon, and the Gardner took third place, averaging 28.08 miles.

HERE ARE THE OFFICIAL WINNERS IN EACH CLASS

CLASS	CAR	DRIVER	Miles to the Gallon
1A	Overland, Model 91	R. Bonaccini	28.03
2A	Overland, Model 92	Joe Bozzani	29.36
3A	Oakland Sedan	A. L. Peterson..	21.05
4A	Kissel	H. L. Nichelson..	21.05
5A	McFarlan Six	V. V. Hilliard..	14.16
Closed Car	Oakland Sedan	A. L. Peterson..	21.05

The automobile manufacturers and drivers whose cars engaged in this economy classic may continue to differ on the comparative merits of the various cars entered, but on motor fuels they agree that for true economy—power and mileage—it's "Red Crown."

RED CROWN GASOLINE — TRADE MARK

"RED CROWN" SCORES AGAIN

Over 414 miles of the most strenuous valley and mountain course that could be laid out, fourteen cars fiercely contested for "nose, place and show" in the 1924 Los Angeles-Camp Curry Yosemite Economy Run.

In no competition in recent years have the winners been more closely pressed, and the mileage records shown are all the more remarkable for the new ruling which barred coasting out of gear to save gasoline.

For the eighth consecutive year "Red Crown" was the only gasoline used in this sensational power and mileage test. The reason for this unanimous choice is shown by the remarkable records printed here. Since the motor fuel was exactly the same gasoline as the public uses—is there any reason why "Red Crown" won't develop more power and better mileage in your car as well?

Fill your tank where you see the Red Crown sign—at Standard Oil Company Service Stations, garages and other dealers—and get motordom's accepted quality standard for gasoline.

ZEROLENE BRINGS IN SIX OF THE WINNERS

Six of the cars winning trophies used Zerolene: The Overland, Model 92, winner of 1st place in the Sweepstakes and Class 2-A; the Overland, Model 91, winner of Class 1-A; the Oakland sedan, winner in Class 3-A and the "Closed Car"—and the Kissel, winner in Class 4-A. Insist on Zerolene—a better oil—even if it does cost less.

FORMER PUPILS OF HIGH SCHOOL TO MEET FRIDAY

Many Features Planned for Annual Homecoming Day By Graduates

Hundreds of the alumni of the Glendale Union High school have already signified, by word and letter, their intention of visiting the new institution on East Broadway next Friday afternoon and night, when the annual homecoming day will be held.

George U. Moyse, principal, is extending an invitation to all former students to visit the school and enjoy the program that is being arranged for them. He reports that over 800 letters were sent to alumni, telling them of the plans for the day and urging them to come.

Although every effort has been made to let every Glendale graduate know of the affair, Mr. Moyse states that it has been impossible to obtain the addresses of many, and requests that all those that have been invited pass the word along to any friends who have previously attended the Glendale High school.

Recall Early Days

Graduates of the old school when it was situated on the corner of Brand and Broadway, where the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings Bank building now stands, will mingle with others who graduated from the Harvard street school, and all will marvel at the growth that has made possible the fine new group in which they have assembled.

It will be the first opportunity for many of them to inspect the new buildings, and many will return for that purpose. Others who have already seen the new plant will return to renew acquaintances and mingle with their former schoolmates. Student guides have been appointed to conduct the graduates through the buildings.

Party for Kiddies

The afternoon program will include a children's party, tea and informal get-together meeting in Room 215. Alumni with children have been especially requested to bring them with them so that they can take part in the children's party being arranged by the Girls' league. The girls are arranging a nursery for the little ones who are too young to take part in the afternoon doings.

The faculty and students are preparing for an even larger crowd at the night program, when many of the alumni who are unable to be absent from work in the afternoon will attend the business meeting and vaudeville in the auditorium. The alumni business meeting will be held promptly at 7:45 o'clock, and the vaudeville will follow immediately afterward.

Dance to Follow

After the program the alumni and senior class will gather in Room 215 for an informal dance. The evening program is under the supervision of Miss Dorothy Gilson.

Refreshments will be served throughout the day, and music will be furnished by the high school orchestra. The senior girls, who are acting as hostesses, have organized entertainment, social and friendship committees to assist in carrying out the plans.

The reception committee will greet the alumni as they enter, and other students will be ready to act as guides. Registration tables and information bureaus will be placed at the main entrance and at the west door. Every graduate will be requested to register at the entrance.

Parliamentary Club Gives Actors Flowers

The Women's Parliamentary Law club is receiving many compliments on the artistic floral arrangements seen at the various Chautauqua programs. Mrs. R. N. Stryker is chairman of the club committee handling this work.

At the program last night baskets of flowers were presented to those taking part. The baskets were the artistic work of Mrs. Harry Greenwalt, president of the club.

An electric brander is now used to trademark fruits.

Best Editorial In 1923
Deals With Calvin Coolidge
Who Made Calvin Coolidge?
Writer Gets Pulitzer Prize

By Gil A. Cowan

Frank W. Buxton, managing editor of the Boston Herald, won the Pulitzer prize for the best editorial during the year 1923. Perhaps you have not read, it so today we will devote this column to its publication as being timely and worthy of your perusal in that it deals with President Calvin Coolidge. The style is different, as you will note, from most humdrum comments, and the writer of the epic was thoroughly conversant with his subject, "Who Made Coolidge?" The text of the editorial was as follows:

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

Margaret Foley, of course. When Levi H. Greenwood was president of the Massachusetts Senate he opposed woman suffrage. She opposed his re-election and prevailed. Senator Coolidge became President Coolidge on Beacon Hill, and the signals were set clear for the road to the governorship.

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

Edwin U. Curtis, of course. When he was a sick man in that old brick building at the dead end of Pemberton square, the heedless policemen went out on strike to the refrain of "Hail, hail, the gang's all here." The sick man showed the strength of the stalwart until finally Governor Coolidge sent a telegram to Samuel Gompers that tapped its way into national prominence, and is today a sort of magna charta of the people's rights.

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

James Lucey, the Northampton cobbler, of course. No explanation or argument is necessary here, but merely a reminder. The Herald published a facsimile a few days ago of President Coolidge's letter to him, which said: "If it were not for you, I should not be here."

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

Frank W. Stearns, of course. With as close an approximation to second sight as we may expect in these days, and with an ability to see around the corner years before Einstein told us how rays of light are bent, this substantial, self-made, self-respecting Boston merchant, with his quiet sense of obligation to the community, discerned qualities which hardly anybody else glimpsed. To go to the Republican convention he left a Governor, only to come back to pay his respects to a potential Vice-President.

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

Senator Crane, of course. He made Coolidge by showing him, in precept and practice, the way of wisdom and by vouching for him in high places where his chance say-so was as good as his oath and bond. To the younger man he gave that mixture of personal attachment and respect of which he was none too prodigal, but always of mighty advantage to the few who won it.

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

The Republican party of Massachusetts, of course, a canny organization, with some Bourbonism, some democracy, some vision, some solid traditions, and no end of genuine appreciation of the merits of a trustworthy man. It always lined up behind him solidly, even when he displayed that reticence which to the unknowing was some evidence of ingratitude, and to the knowing was merely Coolidgeism.

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

The people of Massachusetts, of course. They took him at more than his own modest valuation, whether he wanted to be a town officer or a Governor. They had that which thousands call a blind faith in him. More thousands called it a passionate intuition.

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

His mother, of course, who endowed him with her own attributes: a father that taught him prudential ways with all the quiet vigor of the old Greeks who preached moderation in everything; his school and his college; his classmate, Dwight Morrow, and his guest of a day or two ago at the White House, William F. Whiting.

Who Made Calvin Coolidge?

Calvin Coolidge, of course. From the reflective shoemaker and the furious Miss Foley to the complacent Frank W. Stearns and the watchful and discerning Senator from Dalton, came some of the makings, but the man himself had the essentials of greatness. Give another man those same foes and friends and he might still be as far away from the White House as most sons of Vermont.

Continue Revivals In Big Tent In Fairview

Interest is increasing in the revival meetings being held in the gospel tent at Irving street and Glenwood road in the Fairview district, under the auspices of the Church of United Brethren in Christ.

M. Alice Durham is the evangelist and in opening her meetings she declared "Sin has not changed, therefore needs the same remedy." Special music is given at the services.

The lot on which the tent stands has been purchased and plans are under way for erecting a permanent church building, it is stated.

CHARGE TAX FRAUD

CHICAGO, May 20.—Edwin Anderson of Hollywood, Cal., formerly owner of the Industrial Machinery and Equipment company, went on trial today before Federal Judge Carpenter, charged with failure to report $53,000 for income tax purposes.

There are now 15,000,000 motor vehicles in the United States.

Glendale Student Is Fraternity Member

Vernon Jenkins, a junior in the Oregon Agricultural college, from Glendale, was pledged to Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural fraternity, at a meeting of the agricultural club, held last week. The pledges were announced by Hugh Good, chancellor of Alpha Zeta.

Requirements for admittance into the fraternity are high scholarship standing leadership and strong character. Juniors and seniors who have shown general ability in agricultural work are eligible. Jenkins is an active participant in campus activities, having recently been in charge of senior class elections and a member of the committee for campus week-end. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, social fraternity.

Community Orchestra Will Meet at School

J. Arthur Myers, director of the Glendale community orchestra, announces that there will be a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at the Broadway High school. At that time the pictures of the group will be retaken and Mr. Myers is anxious to have a full attendance.

These musicians are now working on "G Sharp Symphony" (Mozart) and "Sylvia Ballets" (Delibes). So popular is the orchestra becoming that there is now a long waiting list.

Child Is Injured as Cars Crash at Corner

Anetta, 6-year-old daughter of Edgar B. Schockley, Jr., 615 West Salem street, was slightly injured last night when a car driven by her father collided with another machine driven by W. Chatman of Tujunga at the corner of San Fernando road and Windsor road.

The girl was taken into a neighboring house where after receiving medical attention, she was removed home.

Noted Aviator Visits Friends In Glendale

Glenn Martin, noted aviator, and his mother who has been wintering in Los Angeles, were calling upon several friends in Glendale yesterday. Mr. Martin came west from Cleveland, Ohio, two weeks ago and has been entertained by the residents of his home town, Santa Ana, and has spent several days in San Diego. He will not leave for the east for another ten days or more and will be accompanied by his mother.

According to an old astrological prediction, a girl born in March is a frivolous chatterbox, somewhat given to quarreling, and if born in April is inconstant, not intelligent, but likely to be good looking.

Who Did It?

ROBERT L. OWEN, United States senator, who intends to find out who really started the World war.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Despite the cold reception given its proposal, Senator Robert L. Owen is pushing a resolution directing the foreign affairs committee of the senate to appoint a committee to study the question of the origin of the war.

After a study of secret documents revealed since the armistice, Senator Owen has, he says, come to a conclusion that Germany was not solely responsible for the conflict, and he believes that any impartial commission would do likewise.

"More than 100,000,000 people in Central Europe now, five years after the cessation of hostilities, are still convinced," he says, "that their governments were not the only ones at fault in the days and months preceding the fatal first of August, 1914." He points out that since these people know that the whole Treaty of Versailles rests upon the assumption of Germany's sole responsibility for the war, they attribute their present misery to a lie.

German, Austrian and Russian files of war documents are now open for inspection, and, although French and British archives still are secret, enough evidence from them is available, Senator Owen says, to support this conclusion regarding the attitude of Germany through most of July, 1914.

"The German militaristic rulers did not will the war, tried to avoid the war, and only went into war because of their conviction that the persistent mobilization of Russia and France meant a determination on war and were secretly intended as a declaration of war by Russia and France against Germany.

Other Nations Belligerent

"The records show that the Russian and French leaders were determined for war, and intended the mobilization as the beginning of a war which had for many years been deliberately prepared and worked out by the complete plans of campaign through annual military conferences."

Senator Owen's agitation is being frowned on in Washington, still imbued with the spirit injected into it by the extraordinary evidence of Germany's guilt disseminated by the Creel publicity bureau. There is some hesitation, however, on the part of the frowners in labeling the senator from Oklahoma pro-German. Like friend Will Rogers, he happens to have Cherokee Indian blood in his veins. Although born in Virginia, most of his life has been spent on the broad prairies of the former Indian Territory, where he served successively as secretary of the board of education of the Cherokee Nation, editor of the Indian Chieftain, United States Indian agent for the five civilized tribes, as well as being interested in banking, real estate and farming. Furthermore, he is a Democrat.

PRESENTS VIEWS OF BOTH PARTIES IN CONTROVERSY

Plan to Replace U. S. Labor Board by New Body Is Reviewed at Length

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1924, by The Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The controversy over the abolition of the United States Railroad Labor Board and the substitution of a board of mediation and conciliation has developed some sharp difference of opinion between the railway executives and the railway employes. In order to obtain a statement of the views of each side the writer asked W. W. Baldwin, vice-president of the Burlington railroad, and Donald Richberg, counsel for the organized railway employes, to prepare a comment on the principal phases of the Howell-Barkley Bill. Mr. Baldwin says:

"The exact language of the Howell-Barkley Bill is as follows: 'The said board shall use its best efforts by conciliation to bring them to agreement. If such efforts to bring about an amicable adjustment shall be successful, the said board shall at once endeavor to induce the parties to submit their controversy to arbitration.'

Powers Are Limited

"There is no other language defining the scope of their authority. If this board of conciliation can do nothing but try to persuade, is it not really a repetition of the boards of adjustment, whose powers are limited to persuasion? The only difference is that the boards of adjustment are equally divided and not likely to agree in any important controversy, while the board of conciliation consists of all neutral members.

"Now, under the Cummins law, both the persuasive duties of the boards of adjustment and the board of conciliation and the power of final judgment are vested in the Hooper board, whose composition is absolutely fair. If it cannot persuade, then it will decide. Instead of requesting the parties to please be good and arbitrate, the board arbitrates. It combines every element of neutrality and fair composition that is provided in the Howell measure and the three representatives of the public are the mediators and arbiters from start to finish. Are three not as good as five? We know that the Hooper board will function, will mediate and will arbitrate and will render judgment. It has done it too often not to know that. That is why the labor leaders want to get rid of it.

Nothing But Talk

"But you never can know under the Howell bill that one thing will be done except talk, in any dispute of real moment like a material redduction in wages. Nothing will result in such cases except a strike, because not one of the Howell boards has authority to render judgment and strikes are invited and legalized by clause 8 of section D.

"There is nothing in the Constitution granting a right to any class to combine and to conspire in order to destroy the public transportation servce of the people and forbidding courts to issue process to prevent such conspiracy to inflict universal injury. If railroad managers should undertake such a conspiracy they would soon learn there is no constitutional provision authorizing their action or paralyzing the arm of the courts from restraining them.

"I know that the shopmens' strike in 1922 was called by the unions in spite of the Cummins law, and was a refusal to obey the decision of the Labor Board, but that strike was a failure and no important strike has since occurred, while in 1919 there were said to be 248 strikes on 153 different railroads. I also know that seventy disputes were settled by 'mediation' in six years—that is, from 1913 to 1919, but none of them really were important.

Board Is Efficient

"What was done under the Newlands act is a poor criterion of what will occur if the labor board is abolished. Why was the Newlands Act repealed? Why was 'mediation' then called a failure? Why go back to it when we already have an efficient neutral board in which the public has the controlling voice with far more power and authority to preserve railroad peace than is contained in the Howell Bill?

"The Cummins law provides a permanent tribunal fairly constituted in which the public is represented, whose duty it is to inquire into controversies that threaten to interrupt commerce. It is the duty of the parties to refer their disputes to this tribunal. In all our history there has never before been a tribunal with duty to inquire into the merits of a dispute, unless both parties were willing to arbitrate.

"Paragraph B of Section 307 of title III of the Transportation Act is expressly framed so that employer and employee are not free to make arrangements for raising wages that may require increases in rates to meet the increased expense.

"It seems to me every good citizen should oppose the repeal of these provisions enacted in the public intrest, and which do not appear in any form in the Howell Bill.

"The provision that no labor representative of any board of adjustment will be eligible unless nominated by the 'nationally organized crafts' is not a fair provision because only about half of all railroad employes now belong to those crafts."

Mr. Richberg says:

"Persistent misrepresentation of the Howell-Barkley Bill indicates that its opponents are unable to attack it successfully on its merits.

"It is claimed that the proposed board of mediation and conciliation, consisting of five public members, will be ineffective compared to the present Labor Board, consisting of three public members, and six partisans, for which it is substituted. The present board cannot mediate because of its partisan members, so it has no powers of persuasion. It sits as a board of arbitrators and issues so-called decisions, which are not enforceable. The railroads have violated decisions frequently. Up to November 15, 1923, violations of 355 decisions had been officially charged against the railroads.

"The Labor Board has no power to enforce a settlement of any dispute. But the proposed board of mediation can either bring about an agreement or an arbitration and an arbitration award becomes a legally enforceable judgment.

Boards In Agreement

"It is claimed that boards of adjustment, being really divided, are not likely to agree. Corresponding boards of adjustment agreed on decisions of over six thousand controversies inside 18 months, 1918-19, with less than 12 disagreements. Under the present law, decisions of grievance disputes which comprise more than three-fourths of the Labor Board's 'decision' are not enforceable and have been frequently violated by the railroads. Under the Howell-Barkley Bill decisions of adjustment boards are enforceable as arbitration awards, a point which the astute railroad lawyers either overlook or purposely ignore.

"It is claimed that company unions may not nominate for national adjustment boards. But company unions are opposed to national boards. The proposed law leaves them free to settle all disputes in conference, through local committees or local adjustment boards. Why should they be represented on national boards to which they do not desire to take their grievances What interest have they in opposing national boards for nationally organized workers?

"It is important to remember that these adjustment boards have no authority to make or to change wages or rules. They only interpret contracts, that is, they decide technical disputes over the application of agreements.

Labor Law Abiding

"It is claimed that the previous mediation law, the Newlands act, was not successful and for proof it is asserted there were 248 strikes in 1919. Answer (1) the Newlands act only applied to train service men and not a single strike of these men followed federal mediation when the Newlands act was in force. Answer (2) the operation of the Newlands act was suspended by federal control throughout the year 1919. Is the opposition will fully dishonest or inexcusably ignorant?

"A claim is made that the Howell-Barkley bill 'legalizes strikes,' because it provides that an 'individual employe' cannot be required to render service without his consent. This provision was written in the Erdman act and the Newlands act because it was necessary to comply with the thirteenth amendment prohibiting involuntary servitude. An arbitration award is expressly made enforceable against an organization of employes. Concerted action to violate an award can be prevented by the courts. But no constitutional law can require an individual employe to render personal service unwillingly. Every competent railroad attorney knows that under the proposed law, organized action to violate contracts or arbitration awards would be illegal. Labor's position is law-abiding and square."

Meditates in Cell Over Conjugal and Similar Troubles

CHICAGO, May 20.—In the quiet of a cell at the West Chicago avenue station, Samuel Hepstead found the seclusion he wanted for meditation on wives and the influences that make modern life complex.

As a monk in his cloister, Hepstead sought his cell.

"Lock me up for forty-eight hours," he asked. "In the quietude of a cell I can think over the troubles that my third wife and I have been having. The scanty diet of bread and water will aid my thoughts."

Hepstead and whatever peace theories he may evolve will be released tonight.

Plan Dental Hygiene System in Schools

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Legislation authorizing every county in California to establish dental hygiene in the schools will be initiated at the annual convention of the California State Dental Association, to be held in San Francisco May 26 to May 29

A bill will be introduced in the next legislature providing for establishment by county boards of supervisors of this service with trained dentists to care for the months of all school children. The measure is being drawn up by Dr. D. Harry Leppo of Santa Rosa, president of the association, and Dr. Guy S. Hillberry of San Francisco, dean of the state university, aided by many prominent dentists.

It also is planned to introduce legislation to re-establish the Division of Dental Hygiene as a part of the State Board of Health with an appropriation of $15,000 for the biennium. The division was abolished by Governor Richardson.

FAMOUS ACTRESS BACK ON SCREEN

Beverly Bayne to Play Lead In Films After Long Vaudeville Season

By MARIAN MARSHALL
By Southland News Service.

HOLLYWOOD , May 20.—A most important announcement that will be welcomed by screen followers throughout the country is made today by Production Manager Jack Warner that Beverly Bayne will return to the silent drama as the feminine lead in "Her Marriage Vow" which is to be put into production early next week. She will appear opposite Monte Blue.

For the past few seasons, since her temporary retirement from the cinema field, the talented actress has toured the Orpheum and Keith circuits as a headline attraction. She has been resting in Los Angeles for several months and it is because of her likeness to the part in "Her Marriage Vow" that she was finally induced to return to pictures in this important role.

Emotional Part

In "Her Marriage Vow" Miss Bayne will be given ample opportunity to display her emotional ability. She will be recalled by Southern California picture fans as one of the outstanding motion picture actresses of her time.

Ernest Lubitsch, famous director, is soon to move. Immediately upon completion of his present production which is being made with May McAvoy, Marie Prevost and others in the leading roles, Lubitsch will journey two blocks up Sunset boulevard to the Paramount studios where he will direct Pola Negri in her next picture. Arrangements were made between Paramount officials and the Warners whereby the former organization is "borrowing" the famed director for a single picture—thereby fulfilling a long felt desire on the part of the director and star to work together again.

Crude Oil Output in April Shows Advance

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Production of crude oil in California for April showed a slight increase over March, according to figures compiled by the American Petroleum Institute which give production for the past month as 19, 299,849 barrels, an increase of 965 barrels a day over the preceding month.

The amount actually produced was slightly less than the March figure, however, the institute believes, because 20,000 barrels per day of production was shut in during March and released the following month. Total stocks on hand at the end of the month were 97,335,651 barrels, an increase of more than 600,000.

He's Cardinal

CARDINAL BONZANO, who makes fifth cardinal for United States, although he is not a resident of this country.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—There really are five American cardinals, although only four of them hold sees in the United States.

Cardinal Bonzano became an American citizen while serving here as apostolic delegate to the United States. He was elevated to the Sacred College on his return to Rome.

This extra vote, five in all, is only one less than the total possessed by France and two less than that of Spain, the second and third nations, respectively, which are numerically powerful at the Sacred College, Italy being first with twenty-nine cardinals.

To this United States total of five might be added one more who would vote with the Americans on questions affecting this continent. He is Cardinal Begin of Quebec, Canada.

Besides Cardinal Bonzano there were two other papal nuncios from Italy to the United States who were American citizens and cardinals. They were Cardinals Satolli and Falconio, both dead.

Besides these the United States has been able to boast seven Cardinals. Their names and the dates of their elevation follow:

John McCloskey, March 15, 1875.
James Gibbons, June 7, 1886.
John Murphy Farley, November 27, 1911.
William Henry O'Connell, November 27, 1911.

ASSIST CHILDREN IS JUDGE'S PLEA

Every Man Should Give Boys Opportunity to Become Better Citizens

The greatest duty of every business man, as well as a privilege, is the assistance of underprivileged children, Judge Ira H. Thompson, presiding judge in department 20 of the Superior court in Los Angeles, told members of the Glendale Exchange club at the luncheon held today noon at the Egyptian Village.

The duty, the speaker said, lies in the opportunity to make good citizens out of every boy and girl who would otherwise be denied the chance. It is a matter of sound finances and business welfare, he said, to extend a helping hand to such children, and one that should not be overlooked.

Judge Thompson's address followed the action of the club members in contributing, by collection, the sum of $25 for the Salvation Army milk fund.

Neglected Duty

Another great duty that is often neglected, Judge Thompson said, is serving on juries. He asked the members how many of them would like to risk the life, liberty or property of their mother, sister or children in the hands of a jury selected hither and yon, if the person before the bar wasnot guilty of the charge?

The jury system, he said, is the foundation of the American judiciary system, and all juries have to decide the matters that must be taken care of to maintain a sound government.

President R. E. Johnston announced plans for a large delegation from the club being present at the Southern Pacific depot at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning when the Glendale Special will leave on its eastward trip.

The attendance prize, which was donated by O. F. Paseman, florist, of 207 East Broadway, was won by S. MacMulkin.

New Members

New members of the club introduced at the luncheon by W. A. McCormack, chairman of the membership committee, were: Sam Warren, park commissioner and florist, 619 East Broadway; H. M. Millea, ladies' apparel shop, 119 North Brand; R. W. Ahlmann, druggist, 200 South Brand; T. J. Fambraugh, apartment house owner, 220 North Orange street; C. E. Griffin, The Evening News Commercial Printing company, 139 South Brand, and A. J. Criderman, automobile salesman, transferred from Long Beach.

Vineyard Owner Sold Liquor, Sleuths Claim

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Antonio Bessone, Culver City, proprietor of the Cazzerino Vineyard, is alleged to have sold liquor with more than the prescribed alcoholic content to federal prohibition agents. He was arrested. With him was seized 750 gallons of wine, 150 gallons of brandy and a quantity of moonshine whiskey. The liquor was found concealed under the floor of the house, barn and garage. Bessone was brought to the county jail and bond fixed at $2000. The wine was destroyed.

Voluntary Petitions In Bankruptcy Filed

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Frank A. Donecken, Glendale, filed voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court yesterday afternoon, listing liabilities at $2983 and assets at $200. Walter C. Andrews, Torrance, who also filed a voluntary petition, claims liabilities of $7237 and assets of $9162. With liabilities of $70,064 and assets of only $420, Ira L. Crandall of Santa Monica also asked to be adjudged a bankrupt.

Magnitude of Lumber Firm's Investment and Stock Stirs Pride of Guests on Tour of Plant; Fox Is Luncheon Host

Visualization of 2,500,000 board feet of lumber was the novel experience enjoyed yesterday noon by the board of directors and industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and the industrial commitee of the Glendale Realty board, when, as the guests of Frank L. Fox, president and general manager of the Fox-Woodsum Lumber company, 714 East California avenue, they inspected all departments of this large Glendale institution.

"The magnitude of this plant proved an eye-opener to us," declared President W. E. Hewitt of the Chamber of Commerce, at a luncheon following the tour, tendered by Mr. Fox at the Oakmont Country club. "We take more pride in our local industries in direct proportion as we know them better."

The twenty Glendale business men who went through the Fox-Woodsum plant had an opportunity to survey every department in detail. Starting at the general offices, they were introduced to W. R. Vanderwood, secretary-treasurer of the company, and to C. A. Suiter, assistant secretary. They also met J. W. Stauffacher, manager of the Independent Lumber company, of that location, bought out by the Fox-Woodsum interests in 1913. The present Independent Lumber company of Glendale has no connection with that one-time firm, Mr. Fox stated.

Stock Grows Ten-Fold

When the Fox-Woodsum Lumber company was established in this city a generation ago, it carried 250,000 board feet of lumber, a big stock for those days. This stock has been multiplied ten times in ten years, an achievement commensurate with the growth of Glendale. The company now has branches at Claremont, Upland, Riolto, Colton and Redlands, the visitors were informed, all buying being done through the main plant.

Mr. Fox then led the way to the shipping departments, one for lumber and one for mill products, introducing Charles Pfoutz and W. M. Dundas, managers. From there they went to the truck department, in charge of C. D. Fox, then on to the mill department, under W. N. Rathbun. It was here that interest centered, as they watched the various "stickers" turning out casing, base and interior trim in Oregon pine, southern red gum, mahogany, white cedar and oak. Doors, windows, buffets and cabinets were also seen under process of construction here.

Reduce Fire Risks

They observed that each machine was driven by a motor of its own and that all electric wiring was in conduits. Attached to each machine they saw a blower, which sucked up the sawdust and shavings, carried them to a giant incinerator and consumed them, thus greatly reducing the fire hazard and making possible a lower insurance rate. Mr. Fox told his visitors that a sprinkling system would soon be installed that would bring the insurance rate to practically that of a private dwelling.

The party saw whole buildings devoted to supplies of cement, stucco, plaster, lime, metal lath, building paper, roofing and in short pratically every variety of material required in construction except heavy hardware. The entire plant covers two and one-half acres, they were told, which, with the improvements, represented an investment of $125,000, exclusive of the 2,500,000 board feet of lumber carried in stock, representing enough material to build 200 homes.

Long Association

Many were interested to learn that Frank L. Fox has been in the lumber business since 1898, starting at the bottom in Lexington, Neb., under S. T. Woodsum, vice-president of the Fox-Woodsum Lumber company. Mr. Fox and Mr. Woodsum formed their business associations back in Nebraska and in 1910 sold out. Three years later they bought the present Glendale plant.

Following is a list of the twenty Chamber of Commerce and Realty board officials who were Mr. Fox's guests: George H. Bentley, J. M. Boland, A. T. Cowan, Fred Deal, A. R. Eastman, Burton McGinnis, Harry E. Hall, W. E. Hewitt, C. W. Ingledue, R. W. Jessup, R. E. Johnston, George B. Karr, R. F. Kitterman, Julius Kranz, George U. Moyse, Eugene F. Sanders, D. H. Smith, C. A. Suiter, W. R. Vanderwood and L. H. Wilson.

Eugene F. Sanders and R. E. Johnston were unable to be present at the luncheon, owing to pressure of business.

$18,000 FOR STAMP

DAYTONA, Fla., May 20.—M. de Beaujeu, a winter visitor here, from Windham, Greene county, N. Y., attracted considerable attention the other day when he sold a rare postage stamp to a Palm Beach man for the sum of $18,000. Beaujeu is a dealer in rare postage stamps of a generally ancient vintage. The one which he said brought him $18,000 was known as a Hawaiian "Missionary," of 1851, which, he said, was purchased two years ago at a sale of the Ferrary collection conducted by the French government. He bought the stamp for $14,510, he said. This deal brought him little profit, however, Beaujeu said, because of the insurance necessary against fire and theft and also taxes on the rare stamp.

Wesleyan Athletics to Be Made Cheaper

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 20.—Athletics at Wesleyan University are to be made less expensive, if such result is within the power of the athletic council. A first step is eliminating a cost of $700 annually for presenting sweaters to every man who wins a letter in major sports. Under old rules a man winning four letters received four sweaters. Now he will get but one sweater, no matter how many letters he gathers in his undergraduate days.

Soccer and golf are to be added to Wesleyan's list of minor sports in the near future, the council having voted to add soccer in the fall and now having golf under consideration, with a favorable inclination to adopting the game.

Man 83, Woman 54, Wed; Start for Europe

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 20—"Darling, I am growing old."

"We are in the prime of life. Why, 83 isn't so old for a husband. I feel just as young as I did 20 years ago," declared Annie E. Newton, 54, here recently, en route, with Benjamin E. Cook, 83 to the altar.

Both were married before. Their marriage was the culmination of their desire to "see the world" and loneliness after the death of their respective mates.

"We are both financially independent," said the bride.

The couple left immediately for a three-months' tour of the Mediterranean.

DEALERS WORRIED

TOKIO, May 20.—Not the least of those who worry over the repeated shakings of the earth in Japan are dealers in glassware and curio dealers. Undaunted by the first great quake on September 1, 1923, those who supply the foreign tourist with expensive, but breakable, curios, and those who supply the Japanese people with all sorts of glassware, made arrangements to reopen their shops, and were just beginning to catch up on their business when the January 15 shake came. At that time, it is estimated, the glassware dealers and those who sell curios were among the hardest hit, as their stocks were most easily damaged by the very strong earthquake.

LOTS OF BACHELORS

CLINTON, Mass., May 20.—Here's a great opportunity for girls in the matrimonial market seeking husbands.

There are 2500 bachelors in this town, according to statistics given out by Town Clerk Carr. Some are tall and others small, fat and thin, blond and brunette, many with beautiful hair, and those seen very seldom at the barber shop—bald, or toupee wearers.

Clinton is often called the "Girls Paradise." Competition here is very keen for each girl's hand.

CARTER REFUSES TO DISTURB TUT

Egyptian Ruler Will Remain In Tomb After Relics Have Been Taken

CHICAGO, May 20.—King Tut-Ankh-Amen will continue to sleep undisturbed in the tomb where he was laid 3000 years ago.

Howard Carter, the Egyptologist, who brought to light the Pharaoh's last resting place and had reached the point where the king's mummy was exposed, when he was stopped by the Egyptian government, so declared today. He is in Chicago for two lectures.

"All my troubles with the government have been settled and I will resume work at the tomb next fall," Carter said, "but the mummy of the king will not be removed. I am not in favor of putting mummies in museums and after the relics that surround King Tut are taken out the tomb will be sealed again with the mummy inside."

Husband Hit Her With Whiskey Flask, Claim

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Clara MacDermott, Hollywood, today asked for a divorce from Raymond A. MacDermott because he had "hit her with a whisky flask" and also hit her "near the eyes, so that her vision was blurred." Another time, she says, he frightened her so that she had to sleep outside in an automobile all night, although in light clothing.

EIGHTY INJURED FIGHTING FLAMES

Airedale Rouses Watchman As Fire Breaks Out on Coney Island Pier

NEW YORK, May 20.—Eighty firemen were injured, most of them overcome by smoke, in fighting two fires early today. One of the fires was on the Battery waterfront, and destroyed one of the oldest piers in the city.

Two firemen were overcome by smoke and two others collapsed from exhaustion while fighting this blaze.

Firemen responding to the waterfront fire were worn out after fighting a stubborn blaze on lower Broadway, in which seventy-six firemen were injured or overcome by smoke.

The destroyed pier was known as the "Old Coney Island Pier." The blaze was discovered by an Airedale dog, whose whining and barking attracted a watchman's attention to flames shooting out of the windows.

Association Acts to Disbar L. A. Attorney

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Alleging that Attorney Homer C. Millsap, Los Angeles, violated his oath and committed acts of moral turpitude in connection with his representing a client, Ida Morgan Clark, a widow, an accusation in the matter of proceedings for his disbarment has been filed by the Los Angeles Bar association. It is claimed that Millsap embezzled various sums totalling $31,394.54 from Mrs. Clark and the M. M. Investment company.

Trained Bear's Claws Scratch Pomona Boy

POMONA, May 20.—George Motter, 13, Pomona boy, is today suffering from painful scratches on his chest and side as the result of an encounter last evening with a trained bear, on exhibition in front of a theatre. Bruin was muzzled. This fact, according to Chief of Police Lyter, probably saved the boy from serious injury or death.

Cut In Freight Rates To Save Large Sums

coast it may be double that figure, it was said.

Fight Starts in 1920

The nationwide protest over high express rates was precipitated in 1920 by the California commission when it refused to place in effect in California the 13½ per cent raise in express rates ordered by the Interstate Commerce commission.

Since then California alone of all the states had not paid this increase in rates in intra-state commerce, over which its commission has jurisdiction. Savings totalling more than $1,000,000 a year are estimated to have benefitted shippers and growers by this refusal.

Demand by the Interstate Commerce commission that California pay this increase resulted in the rate hearing in Washington, D. C., which terminated with the announced reduction.

New Rate Schedule

J. C. Harriman at the request of the California body was named to sit in on the hearings, representing this state.

The new rate per hundred pounds from San Francisco to New York will be $13 as compared with the prevailing $14.62. The rate from Los Angeles to this city will be $3.30 per hundred as compared with $3.34.

Under the new schedule the nation is to be divided into three districts as compared with the present five.

From the Mississippi to the Pacific ocean will be one district, from the Mississippi east to the Appalachian mountains will be another and the third will be on the Atlantic coast.

Suicide Hounded by Enemies, Is Theory

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—W. G. Ross, aged 53, a real estate broker, residing at 4724 South Figueroa street, in a mysterious way this morning ended his life—leaving a note which said, "Crucifixion is the blackest and most cruel punishment," indicating he was being hounded by someone.

Although there was no sign of poison in his room, officers who investigated the case believe it was a clear case of suicide. Ross had offices at 1432 West Jefferson street.

Map Made By Columbus Found In Old Library

PARIS, May 20.—A map made by Christopher Columbus and of great value owing to its possible bearing on his discovery of America, has been found under curious circumstances in the National library by M. De La Ronciere, head of the printed book section.

M. De La Ronciere told the Academie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres that he believed the map to be none other than the one which inspired Columbus' epoch-making voyage. It was filed in the library as a Portuguese map of the Sixteenth century.

An illustration accompanying thedocument gives a notably fine view of the port of Genoa, and in addition its indications relative to the spherical character of the earth are identical with autograph notes by Columbus preserved by Cardinal Pierre Cailly.

The map represents the earth as it was then known, in the form of an island enveloped by four oceans, and gives in detail the coastlines of Europe and of Africa as far as the Cape of Good Hope.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SUGAR COOKIES

"Ting-a-ling!" rang the telephone bell in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"I'll answer," said Nurse Jane, as the bunny rabbit arose politely, laying aside the paper he was reading. "It's probably Mrs. Bushytail, the squirrel lady. I asked her to tell me how to make a bag pudding."

"A bag pudding!" cried Uncle Wiggily, as the telephone kept on ringing. "What is a rag pudding, Nurse Jane?"

"I didn't say rag, I said bag," laughed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "It's the kind of a pudding you boil in a bag. I'm coming," Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy squeaked as the bell rang again.

Then Uncle Wiggily's housekeeper talked over the telephone to Mrs. Bushytail, mother of the squirrel boys (for she it was who had called), and when Nurse Jane finished talking she said:

"I wonder if you'd mind going, Wiggy?"

"Going where?" asked the bunny.

"Over to Mrs. Bushytail's nest house. She has the directions for making the bag pudding all ready, and she has a little surprise for you, she says."

"Ah! That will be very nice," laughed the bunny. "A surprise is almost as good as an adventure. I'll hop right over, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy."

Waiting only to look in the mirror long enough to see that his pink nose was twinkling properly, Uncle Wiggily left his hollow stump bungalow, and soon he found himself at the nest house of Mrs. Bushytail, the squirrel lady.

"Glad to see you, Mr. Longears," chattered the mother of Johnnie and Billie. "Come right in. Here's the directions Nurse Jane wanted for making the wag pudding, and—"

"Wag pudding!" cried the rabbit. "Why Nurse Jane says it's a bag pudding, and at first I thought it was a rag pudding, and now you call it a wag pudding. I wonder—"

"Wag pudding is right," laughed Mrs. Bushytail. "We call it that here because my husband says it's so good he always has to wag his tail when he eats it. Johnnie and Billie wag their tails, also, and once when Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow had some they wagged their tails for joy until I thought they'd drop off!"

"Then wag pudding is a very good name for it," laughed the bunny uncle, as he took the piece of white birch bark on which Nurse Jane had written how Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy was to make the wag pudding.

"And here is a little surprise for you," chattered the squirrel lady. "Oh, nothing much—just some sugar cookies," she explained. "I baked an extra lot and I put some in a bag for you." As she spoke she handed a paper bag to the rabbit gentleman. But, somehow or other, the bag tipped to one side and a round, hard sugar cookie rolled out on the floor.

"Hello! Come back here if you please!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I don't get sugar cookies often enough to lose any that way!"

He made a dive for the cookie, and so did Mrs. Bushytail, and they bumped their heads and laughed, and the cookie rolled under the table and went to sleep.

But Uncle Wiggily soon poked it out with his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, and put the cookie back in the bag. Then, thanking Mrs. Bushytail, the rabbit gentleman started to hop back to his bungalow, so Nurse Jane could start the wag pudding.

Uncle Wiggily had not hopped very far through the woods before, all of a sudden, there was a growling noise behind a short, flat stump and a voice cried:

"Sit down!"

Mr. Longears was so surprised that he sat down—right on the stump. And then, out from behind it, came the Skillery Scallery Alligator with humps on his tail.

"Oh! Oh!" gasped Uncle Wiggily. "I haven't seen you in a long time!"

"No more have I seen you!" gargled the 'Gator. "But I'm glad to see you now. Let me see now—shall I nibble your right ear first, or your left ear?"

"Please don't nibble either one!" begged the bunny, as the 'Gator looked first at his right side and then at his left. And then the bunny began to shake so that he shook a sugar cookie out of the bag. The cookie rolled down the hilly, woodland path like a hoop.

After it chased the bad 'Gator

"What's that?" cried the Alligator.

"A sugar cookie!" answered the rabbit. "Oh, please get it for me!"

"Get it for you? I'll get it for myself!" laughed the 'Gator. "I am terribly fond of sugar cookies! I'll get that and eat it and then I'll nibble your left ear! But first I'll get the cookie!"

Along and along rolled the cookie. After it chased the bad 'Gator But the cookie had a head start, and it rolled so far and so fast along the path that, by the time the Alligator caught up to it, he was far away from Uncle Wiggily.

But do you suppose the bunny stayed there, sitting on the stump, waiting for the 'Gator to come back? Indeed he didn't. As soon as the 'Gator was out of sight, up jumped Mr. Longears and safe home he ran.

"It is better to lose one sugar cookie than to have your ears nibbled," he said. "Besides, I have more cookies in the bag."

And the cookies were very good, and so was the wag pudding.

"PASSAGE OF BONUS BILL WILL SAVE NATION MILLIONS," SAYS LEGION LEADER

Enactment of the soldier bonus bill, that passed the House on Tuesday, ultimately wil save the nation's taxpayers billions of dollars, according to Gilbert Bettman, attorney of Cincinnati, and chairman of the National Legislative committee of the American Legion that drafted the original adjusted compensation bill in 1920. In an interview recently Mr. Bettman predicted the bill would pass the Senate and receive the signature of President Coolidge.

G. Bettman

"If the claims of the former service men for adjusted compensation were allowed to remain unsatisfied," said Mr. Bettman, "a pension system undoubtedly would result. This could cost billions."

Mr. Bettman said the "basic justification for adjusted compensation" was not grounded in the belief that a tip or gratuity should be given the ex-service man for "military service rendered."

"That cannot be paid for," he said. "No service man has requested payment on that score. He seeks instead an approximate adjustment of the economic loss that he suffered by reason of his service."

Mr. Bettman pointed out that the United States "had need of capital, labor and the man to carry the gun" in the war, but that it employed the selective service draft for "only one of those essentials," and that while industries often made excessive profits on war contracts, and labor profited "doubly, even quadruply," the service man was asked to accept as compensation for his economic loss—not for patriotic service—approximately $1.50 a day.

"It is now agreed," continued Mr. Bettman, "that if we have another war all the nation's resources will be subject to selective draft."

Mr. Bettman described the pending bonus bill as merely a means of rectifying an omission. "Many people," he explained, "think the American Legion started the drive for the adjusted compensation bill. Nothing could have been further from the intention of the American Legion. At its first convention in November, 1919, it went on record as favoring aid for disabled comrades, but left adjusted compensation up to Congress.

"Subsequently between sixty and seventy bills were introduced in Congress, providing for soldier-benefit legislation. All those bills were referred to the ways and means committee of the House, which sent out an S. O. S. to the American Legion."

The land and homing aid committee of the American Legion, he said, then went to Washington in an advisory capacity.

"Instead of preparing general legislation," he added, "we prepared a bill that was the basis of the four-fold adjusted compensation bill, containing the home aid, land project, insurance and cash features. The insurance option is virtually embodied in the bill now before the Senate."

Lassen County Wants To Secede to Nevada

SACRAMENTO, May 30.—Lassen county wants to secede from California and become an integral part of Nevada, according to Mrs. Grace C. Stanley, state commissioner of elementary schools who returned today from a visit to Susanville.

Lassen county residents are indignant at the alleged disregard of their interests shown by the state government, said Mrs. Stanley. They say that the state of Nevada does more for them than California.

Prominent citizens instance the declination of the state highway commissioners to visit the county on the ground that they were "too busy." They complain that no work was undertaken in the county—which abounds in picturesque and rugged mountain scenery—until pleasure seekers from outside sections demanded that something be done to make the district more accessible.

It was said that Mono, Inyo, Alpine, Plumes and Modoc which, like Lassen, lie wholly or partially on the eastern slopes of the Sierra Nevadas, would not be averse to annexation to Nevada, with which state it is declared they are allied by community interests and trade.

Proposes Tariff of Six Cents on Copper

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Declaring that foreign copper mines will have absolute control of American copper markets if present conditions continue for a few weeks more, Representative W. SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Modern man is not weaker than the savage.

The male of the species can hunt and kill without modern weapons just as the savage met and conquered his enemies long ago.

These are contentions of Arthur Young, of San Francisco, who has set out equipped with a bow and full quiver of arrows to hunt bears and other wild animals on equal ground, using his bow and arrow as sole protection.

The San Francisco hunter believes that game should be given a fighting chance when hunted, and to live up to this he has always pursued animals of the forest and mountains solely with the arrow. In connection with Dr. S. T. Pope, of this city, Young has killed eleven bears, four mountain lions, thirty deer, wolves, lynx, elk and other animals. Throughout the mountain wilds of the West these two archers have plied their craft.

In Alaska Young will make a special quest for a Kodiak bear. These are larger than the California grizzly bear and often wegh more than 2,400 pounds. The Kodiak bear, according to Young, is the most powerful and ferocious in the world.

The rest of the country may gnash its teeth over high house and apartment rents, but San Franciscans are calm.

That means a three-room apartment, living room, bath and kitchenette, for $60. And the landlords say this is cheap in comparison with rates in in other cities.

Records show, however, an increase of 85 per cent in rents here in the last ten years, although rates have remained at a level for the last two years.

San Francisco's stabilized situation, according to the landlords and builders, is due to the recent erection of apartment and flat buildings totaling 120,000 rooms.

This city, next to New York, boasts the largest number of hotels in America, and new structures are being built every day.

All because a harpoon gun on the whaler Traveler blew up higher than the sky.

Leonard Larson, prize Pacific harpooner, sighted a big fountain 40 miles off the Gate and started in chase in the Traveler. He aimed his deadly gun at the mounting stream of water, but just as he fired the harpoon machine exploded.

Meanwhile the water fountain increased its height, as the big whale escaped and passed the good word of the harpooner's failure to his fellows.

Already one instance of substituting a paid "prisoner" for a bootlegger is on record here and an investigation is being made in other cases.

James Greenan, convicted bootlegger, hired Nick Semey, who looked like him, to serve his 30-day sentence. The plot was exposed when a jailer recognized Semey as a former inmate. On investigation, Greenan was found busily plying his trade.

Greenan is now serving eighteen months.

It's not an offense, crimianl or civil, in California, to compare a man with a coon dog on the basis that neither of them is good for anything else.

A court ruling to that effect is on record here in the case of Daniel C. Imboden, secretary of the Three Cities Chamber of Commerce, who sued District Attorney Franklin Swart for $15,000 libel.

Swart admitted comparing Imboden to a coon dog, but said it was "all a joke."

THE GLENDALE

"Mademoiselle Midnight," which continues at the Glendale theatre, is a decided variant from the preceding Metro pictures in which Robert Z. Leonard has starred his lovely wife, Mae Murray.

The film begins with a prologue depicting the court of Napoleon III and introduces a French lady in waiting. This girl, portrayed by Miss Murray, is the grandmother of the modern girl of the story proper. The beauty of the scenes at court is simply astounding, and Miss Murray looks magnificent in the hoop skirts of the period.

Going into the modern period, the change of scene nevertheless retains the same air of old-fashioned beauty that prevailed in the opening sequence. The Mexico of Miss Murray's picture is a delightful, backward sort of place with quaint houses and quainter people.

NEW DOG FILM

Rin-tin-tin, the famous movie police dog, is to appear in a new picture, "Get Your Man," in which the plot will be laid in New York.

'HUSBANDS AND LOVERS'

"Why Men Leave Home," the vehicle in which Helene Chadwick and Lewis Stone are co-featured, has a rival in "Husbands and Lovers," which is being made. Lewis Stone is again in the leading male role, while opposite him is Florence Vidor. Lew Cody also has a leading part.

BETTY BLYTHE COMING

Betty Blythe's new picture will be made in California.

TO FILM "K"

Mary Roberts Rinehart's novel, "K," is to be filmed under the title, "K—The Unknown," starring Virginia Valli and Percy Marmont.

THE GATEWAY

"A Society Scandal" shows for the last times today at the Gateway theatre, with Gloria Swanson in the lead, supported by Ricardo Cortez, Rod La Rocque and Allan Simpson, the original "Arrow" collar man.

Miss Swanson in this Paramount feature has the role of a society beauty who, involved innocently in a compromising situation with a rotter, is sued for divorce by her weakling husband. On the stand her husband's lawyer, a handsome, young and overzealous attorney, tears her reputation to shreds. Whereupon it becomes the fair divorcee's chief aim in life to humiliate the lawyer in some way for the ruin he has wrought upon her socially. The piquant manner in which she accomplishes her purpose and the surprising result are pictured in a most engrossing manner.

FILMING 'BEN HUR'

The Bible script is being used in the filming of "Ben Hur." The first scene is a direct transcription from the Bible showing the wise men receiving the word that Christ is to be born, their meeting on the desert and the nativity of Christ.

ENTERTAIN REBECCA WEST

Director Neilan and his wife, Blanche Sweet, gave a luncheon at the studio recently in honor of Rebecca West, the English novelist, author of "The Judge" and othes books, who is now visiting in this rountry.

COLEEN'S NEW ROLE

We are to lose our most noted flapper of the movies, for a time at least. Coleen Moore, who has immortalized the bobbed-haired one in "Flaming Youth," "Painted People" and "The Perfect Flapper," is to play an entirely new character in her next, "Counterfeit," in which she is co-starred with Conway Tearle. She is to be a Broadway stage actress and Tearle is to be a district attorney.

Raoul Walsh started his professional career as a screen actor but it wasn't long before he found that his particular forte was the directorial baton. Since then he has left the acting to his wife, Miriam Cooper, and his brother, George.

Rodolph Valentino's next picture after Booth Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire," which is still in production, will be "A Sainted Devil," a Rex Beach story. Bebe Daniels will play opposite Valentino.

RELIEVED CONSTIPATION

"I have been troubled the last 4 or 5 years with constipation and have tried everything under the sun, but could not find any relief until I got FOLEY CATHARTIC TABLETS, and you can bet they are the pills," writes Robert E. Bill Asks Collection Of French War Debts

WASHINGTON, May 20.—A bill directing President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes to institute immediate steps to collect from France the $4,000,000,000 war loans owed the United States was introduced in the House today by Representative Victor Berger, Socialist of Wisconsin.

Berger declared French taxes were lower than those of Americans, and charged loans were being made to other countries, together with the maintenance of 770,000 standing army and an expensive military establishment.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D.
Author of Diet and Health, with Key to the Caolries

ANSWERS TO CORRESONDENTS

Mrs. S.—Ringworm on the scalp is very difficult to cure because the fungus growths which cause the condition burrow down into the hair follicle and are hard to reach with medication.

The ringworm patches should be scrubbed with tar soap and water so as to remove all the scales. Jackson believes that one of the best remedies is sulphur ointment. This is to be rubbed into the patch very thoroughly, and not merely smeared over. Scrub each day with soap and water and put on fresh ointment.

Painting with iodin will sometimes effect a cure. Jackson says he has found that the best way to use iodin is to rub one dram of the crystals of iodin into one ounce of goose grease. This is to be well rubbed into the patches with a stiff brush. This treatment can also be used for ringworms on the body.

Remember that ringworm is contagious and children suffering from it should be taken from school. They must have their own combs and brushes, and their clothing should not be worn by other children. They must sleep alone.

Faithful Reader—You had better have an examination to find out the cause of the very disagreeable odor. A copious hot douche, as hot as you can stand—three or four quarts of water with three or four tablespoonfuls of crystals of boracic acid—will help you temporarily. Take the douche lying down on the bed pan or in the bath tub.

"Dear Doctor—Just a line to tell you how grateful I am to you. Your book on Diet and Health is wonderful. I weighed 206½ pounds on January 1. I went on a liquid diet for six days and lost seven pounds. The next week I ate 1200 calories and lost four pounds more. Since then I lose two or three pounds a week. When I get down to normal, which is 165, must I go back to 2200 calories a day, to keep well? I feel so well satisfied now that I don't feel I want to eat so much. Would I be undernourished if I ate 1700 C. or so a day?—Mrs. F."

When you get back to normal, you will have to find out what your maintenance diet is by watching your weight. Just eat sufficient to feel well and keep your normal weight. It may be 1700 calories will be the normal number for you, so long as you get all the elements your system needs. Include in your diet two or three glasses of milk or skim milk, or some cottage cheese, plenty of vegetables, especially the green leaf vegetables, and some fruit, some wholewheat bread, etc.

Mrs. C.—You are five feet tall and weigh 183 pounds—nearly 75 pounds overweight. That overweight might account for your not having your menstrual periods, or your operation would account for it if you had your ovaries removed. Find out from your surgeons if this was done. You say you are 35 years of age. It may be possible that you have had your change of life already, which seems to be normal for some women. At any rate, you should reduce, and I hope by this time you are on your way.

C.—That corrugated hand massager, the circular of which you sent me, is a splendid aid to general reduction, and especially good for fat in "spots." The strenuous exercise you will get by giving yourself this massage is not the least of all its virtues. I have one and enjoy it very much. (I'll give the name of this apparatus to those who wish it.)

Tomorrow—Essentials in Reducing Exercises.

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s. a.s. e. if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Show Variety In Trimming

Styles for maids and matrons, although they show a sameness in the shapes of the hats, are given a diversified touch by the manner in which the lavish assortment of trimmings is applied in different cases.

By MME. LISBETH

If one glances about in a crowded street car one thinks that women have gone into a kind of uniform as far as their heads are concerned. Only one type of hat—the cloche—is visible. Every woman on the car is quite likely to be peering from beneath the brim of a small, high crowned hat, whether she is tall or short, stout or slim.

But while this type of hat is undoubtedly the most popular, the shops do show a variety and the larger hats are taking courage and coming into the open and will doubtless do it more as the season advances.

Trimmings are more varied than the hats they adorn. In this matter you cannot go far wrong, so you "pay your money and take your choice." I am glad to be able to show one hat that is designed for the woman frankly past forty. It does seem sometimes as if fashion experts left the poor patron of mature years out of the scheme of things. Having taken from her the caps of a bygone generation they have provided no suitable head covering to take its place for the poor dear, and she has to struggle along with unsuitable youthful hats or to search until she finds a milliner who will take a little time from the serving of youth to toss together a chapeau that she may wear without violatign her sense of the fitness of things. This hat is chip straw, small with a slightly rolling brim. The crown is encircled with a ribbon to match the hat and a bunch of flowers is placed near the back.

On the left is one of the larger hats I mentioned. It is a "sports" model of taffeta in red, yellow and blue, and has a leghorn brim. On the upper right we have the prevalent style of small hat. This is a clever little model, however, fashioned of black chip and encircled with a band of blue straw wheels. Below that is a turban shaped chapeau of stencil taffeta—yellow with black motif—with a black sash draped about it and a metal pin for further trimming

ANSWERED LETTERS

Susie, Bobbie—The following exercise will be found helpful in developing the calves of the legs: While in a standing position, rise on the balls of your feet, first with both feet, and then with one foot, balancing by placing the instep of the free foot against the ankle of the other.

Massage using cocoa butter to fatten the legs.

F. M.—I will be glad to send you a formula for an eyelash tonic upon receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope for forwarding.

Miss S. S.—In the Chat concerning drink water for improveing the complexion, there was no intention to refer to the temperature of the water. Water flushes the system which will result in a cleared skin, no matter whether the water is hot or cold.

Hot water is taken mostly in order to stimulate action of the stomach and the other digestive organs, making it preferable to take before a meal, and especially before breakfast. It would be tiresome to take hot water all the time, and as the cool drink refreshes, it would be best to give it the preference.

Mrs. R. S.—I would be glad to send you the formulas you want, if you mail me a stamped, self-addressed envelope for forwarding.

Blue Eyes—Consult the doctor concerning this condition of your eyelids, as continued inflammation of the lining membrane will lead to serious trouble later on. It is necessary that you take the time in the morning to dissolve the waxy secretion, and remove it through bathing with hot water. Absolute cleanliness is essential to healing. The health of the lashes will be affected until you get rid of the inflammation.

People who are inclined to gout or rheumatism are sometimes troubled with inflamed eyelids, so a general cleansing of the whole system will help all of these troubles.

Sheik—At 16 years, five feet, six inches, your weight is normal at 115 pounds. Have your bloomers made so they cover your knees, and the slight deformity will not be seen while you are exercising in the gymnasium.

Anna Jean—Neither beauty nor homeliness could be decided by the fact that eyes are deeply set. Other features: the general expression, health, and of greater significance, one's intelligence—all of these factors contribute to the general impression which would decide the matter.

Tomorrow—Treating The Neck.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes, in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Heart and Home

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

A BAD MAN

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I went out with a man not knowing what he was until afterward. He did not treat me like a respectable person, and I am. At the time he had a girl who was sick in the hospital. Now he passes with this girl and tries to talk about me. She is a bad girl.

I called up his daughter and told on him and told other people about him. They were people I did not know, but he knew them. I know I did not do the right thing by calling them up. I feel so ashamed because I do hate to have the name of a gossip. He is a very bad man, but has a lot of money. He knows that I am good.

The people who got me to go out with him told me afterward what he is and so I got angry at them and told them what I thought of them. Now they say I talk about people. Don't you think they need to be talked about? MISS G. B.

My dear, it never pays to talk about people in an unkind way, even if they deserve it. The people who introduced you to the man were certainly in the wrong, but the way to show how you felt about it was to cease to regard them as friends rather than to talk about them. What you did lacked dignity and would not give the impression of your goodness. The sooner you forget this disagreeable affair, the better it will be for you. Do not talk about it to any one and do not permit yourself to waste time thinking about something that is past when it only makes you miserable. Let your character stand for itself without making an effort to prove its worth. Too much talk almost always gives an opposite impression.

A CASE OF POOR JUDGMENT

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a boy of 17 off and on for one year. I love this boy very dearly, but he does not seem to believe me. How can I make him believe me?

He says he is not jealous and I believe him. My mother has no fault to find with him. She lets me go with other boys too. I go with a lot of boys every week, but I have a very good name.

But how can I win this boy's friendship back? There are other girls that he goes with and I am jealous. Do you think he loves me yet? He bought me a wrist watch for my birthday and he paid $39.75 for it. I think he thinks quite a bit of me, don't you? I can't give him up as I have tried. PRETTY MICKIE.

It is very poor judgment for a girl to try to make a boy believe that she loves him. Boys do not value love that is given too freely whether it is sought or not. Your friend would probably like you better if you kept him in doubt and appeared to care as much for some one else as you did for him. To be popular is certainly pleasant, but I would advise you to be careful about the friends you choose and the amonut that you run around with boys. If you go too much and with friends who are good, bad and indifferent, people are bound to talk and in time you will lose your good name. Probably when the boy gave you the wrist watch he cared a lot for you, but if he seems indifferent now, you may be sure he has lost interest in you and cares for some one else. The more effort you make to gain back his regard, the less he will care for you. When he decides that you are not pursuing him, there is a chance he will return to you.

JOHN F. HAYFORD

The Royal Geographical Society of Great Britain has awarded to John F. Hayford, director of the Northwestern University, the Victorian medal, for notable achievement in establishing the theory of isostasy. The presentation is to be made in London in May, at the anniversary celebration of the society.

John F. Hayford

The only other Americans so recognized were Commander Peary, discoverer of the North Pole, in 1910, and Alexander Rice, noted geographer and explorer, in 1914.

Inostasy attempts to demonstrate the existence of a force beneath the surface of the earth which tends to equalize pressure at all points.

"It adds much to strengthen evidence that the earth is solid throughout from surface to center, and that it is a floating crust on a liquid interior," Director Hayford said, when asked to explain inostasy.

"It also throws light upon the nature of the movements which have folded and crumpled much of the rock formations of the earth. For instance, we have demonstrated that the distance between Harrisburg and Pittsburg, Pa., is nearly ten miles shorter than it was before the folding and crumpling of rocks took place."

In 1889 Hayford was appointed computer of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. Later, in 1892, he became assistant astronomer to the International U. S.-Mexico Boundary Commission, in charge of one of the field parties.

He was instructor of civil engineering at Cornell university from 1895 to 1898 when he returned to the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey with which he was connected until he took up his present position as director of the college of engineering at Northwestern university.

Hayford was born May 19, 1868 at Rouse's Point, N. Y. His present home is in Evanston, Ill.

To make a bathing suit for a child from five to six years, buy four ounces of Shetland Floss (any desired color) and a pair of Number Four Knitting Needles. Cast on four sts. Row One: Knit plain. Row Two: Knit to end of needle and cast on four sts; this is the neck end of the needle, the other end being the point of the shoulder. Repeat these two rows till there are 16 sts. on the needle, always having the added sts. at the neck end. Knit back to shoulder.

Next Row: Knit same and when reaching the wide end, which is the neck, widen one st. on next to last st.; repeat these two rows, widening every other row at neck, till there are 22 sts. on the needle. This will end the work at neck. Braid yarn and knit other side the same and, when ending last row at neck, cast on 20 sts., then knit the other side onto this same needle, making in all 64 sts. on the needle.

Now knit seven ribs plain, then widen one st. at each end of needle every third row till you have 74 sts. on needle. Next row: Cast on four sts. When reaching end of needle, turn, and when reaching end of this row cast on four more sts. (these four sts. on each side are for armhole, making 82 sts. on the needle).

Knit 46 ribs—or as long as desired, to fit a tall child, (before beginning of legs). Knit back 41 sts. and on the forty-first st. widen one stitch.

Next Row: Knit plain across. Next Row: Widen one st. on the forty-first st., knit one st., widen one st. (which will be on the forty-first stitch from the other end of needle). Next Row: Knit plain, repeat these two rows till there are 11 sts. between the widenings, then knit 41 sts. in from end of needle and knit back and forth on these 41 sts. till there are five ribs. Narrow one stitch on inside of leg on next row and make three narrowings in this way (every 50 ribs, which will leave 38 sts. on the needle). Knit back and forth till there are 19 ribs from beginning of leg, then P 2, K 2, for four inches. Bind off.

On the first few rows of the purling narrow one stitch at end of each needle till two stitches have been taken off on each side. Join yarn at beginning of leg just knit, and bind off 11 sts. for gore. This will leave 41 sts. for other leg; knit the same as opposite side.

J. WESTON ALLEN

J. Weston Allen, the man who brought about conviction of "Ponzi," Lawson and other notable characters, and recognized as one of the best criminal lawyers in the country, is now given the task of conducting the prosecutions to be instituted by the Citizens' Federal Research Bureau. The bureau was organized recently under the direction of Frank A. Vanderlip with the avowed purpose of ferreting out instances of corrupt practices and corruption in public offices and bring offenders to justice.

J. W. ALLEN

Allen first gained national prominence when, as a member of the Massachusetts legislature he initiated and conducted the legislative investigation of the so-called "fish trust," which resulted in the subsequent prosecution and conviction of seventeen members of that combine.

In the spring of 1920, as attorney general, he prosecuted and secured convictions against a group of brokers, including Thomas W. Lawson, who were exploiting silver mines of doubtful value.

He next conducted an investigation of Charles Ponzi which drove Ponzi to surrender to the federal authorities and ultimately to a plea of guilty of using the mails to defraud. In the spring of 1921 he brought information against Nathan A. Tufts, district attorney of Middlesex county, which resulted in the removal of that official by the court for malfeasance.

In the fall of 1921 he divulged similar information against Joseph C. Pelletier, district attorney of Suffolk county, upon which the court found the defendant guilty of blackmail and other offenses and removed him.

In 1922 Harvard gave Allen the honorary degree of LL.D.

He was born in Newton Highlands, Mass., April 19, 1872, son of Walter and Grace Mason (Weston) Allen. He is a lineal descendant of Richard Warren and George Soule, original settlers of Plymouth, who came over on the Mayflower. He was graduated from Yale in 1893 and attended Harvard law school, from which he received his degree of LL.B. in 1896. He married Miss Caroline Chenev Hills of Amherst, Mass., June 12, 1901. He started the practice of law in Boston in 1896, and has been active in his profession ever since.

In 1915 Allen was elected to the Massachusetts house of representatives and served three terms. He was elected attorney general in 1920, serving until 1923.

NATURE AND ART

The youth, when Nature and Art attracts him, thinks that with a vigorous effort he can soon penetrate into the innermost sanctuary; the man, after long wanderings, finds himself still in the outer court.

With this observation, Goethe (J. W. Von Goethe, greatest of German writers) began an introduction of the Propylaen, a periodical he founded in 1798 with his friend Heinrich Meyer. Its purpose was to spread sound ideas about the aims and methods of art and in this introduction Goethe set forth his own fundamental ideas on these subjects.

"The highest demand that is made on an artist is this: that he be true to Nature, study her, imitate her, and produce something that resembles her phenomena," he said, in part. "How great, how enormous, this demand is, is not always kept in mind; and the true artist himself learns it by experience only, in the course of his progressive development. Nature is separated from Art by an enormous chasm, which genius itself is unable to bridge without external assistance.

"All that we perceive around us is merely raw material; if it happens rarely enough that an artist, through instinct and taste, through practice and experiment, reaches the point of attaining the beautiful exterior of things, of selecting the best from the good before him, and of producing at least an agreeable appearance, it is still more rare, particularly in modern times, for an artist to penetrate into the depths of things as well as into the depths of his own soul, in order to produce in his works not only something light and superficially effective, but, as a rival of Nature, to produce something spiritually organic and to give his work of art a content and form through which it appears both natural and beyond Nature.

"Man is the highest, the characteristic subject of plastic art; to understand him, to extricate oneself from the labyrinth of his anatomy, a general knowledge of organic nature is imperative. The artist should also acquaint himself theoretically with organic bodies and with the general operations of Nature, particularly if, as in the case of sound and color, they are adaptable to the purposes of art; but what a circuitous path he would be obliged to take if he wanted to seek laboriously in the schools of the anatomist, the naturalist, and the physicist, for that which serves his purpose!

"The human figure cannot be understood merely through observation of its surface; the interior must be laid bare, its parts must be separated, the connections perceived, the differences noted, action and reaction observed, the concealed, constant and fundamental elements of the phenomena impressed on the mind, if one really wishes to contemplate and imitate what moves before our eyes in living waves as a beautiful, undivided whole.

"A glance at the surface of a living being confuses the observer; we may cite here, as in other cases, the true proverb, 'One sees only what one knows.' For just as a short-sighted man sees more clearly an object from which he draws back than one to which he draws near, because his intellectual vision comes to his aid, so the perfection of observation really depends on knowledge. How well an expert naturalist, who can also draw, imitates objects by recognizing and emphasizing the important and significant parts from which is derived the character of the whole!

"Everything is subject to constant change, and since certain things cannot exist side by side, they displace one another. This is true of kinds of knowledge, of certain methods of instruction, of methods of representation, and of maxims. The aims of men remain nearly always the same; they still desire to become good artists and poets as they did centuries ago; but the means through which the goal is reached are not clear to everybody, and why should it be denied that nothing would be more agreeable than to be able to carry out joyfully a great design?

"Naturally the public has a great influence upon Art, since in return for its approval and its money it demands work that may give satisfaction and immediate enjoyment; and the artist will for the most part be glad to adapt himself to it, for he also is a part of the public, he has received his training during the same years, he feels the same needs, strives in the same direction, and thus moves along happily with the multitude which supports him and which is invigorated by him. In this matter we see whole nations and epochs delighted by their artists, just as the artist sees himself reflected in his nation and his epoch, without either having the slightest suspicion that their path might not be right, that their taste be at least one-sided, their art on the decline, and their progress in the wrong direction."

ANGELS CAPTURE BEAVER SERIES, OUT OF CELLAR

Root Allows Ducks But Two Bingles as Teammates Gather Four Runs

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—The Los Angeles ball club won their third series of the 1924 season yesterday at Washington park, when they played good ball behind the effective pitching of Charlie Root and defeated the Portland Beavers, 4 to 1. The victory gave the Angels the long end of the seven game series, four games to three, and pulled them out of the tie for cellar honors with Sacramento, who was idle yesterday.

Root gave a nice demonstration of hurling, letting the hard hitting Ducks down with a pair of safe swats. One of these was a mere scratch too, therefore it was quite the game to watch, although the smallest crowd of the season witnessed the affair.

Portland counted their only run in the second on a walk, an out and a single, Poole tallying the run. After that they were held to one hit and but one man was walked by Root.

TRACK STARS ALL PRIMED FOR MEET

Athletes Round Out Their Training for Tryouts In L. A. Saturday

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Southern California athletes are all primed for the Olympic games tryouts, scheduled for the L. A. coliseum Saturday afternoon, and a great gathering of stars of the cinderpath will be seen in the events that will take the successful ones to Boston and then to Paris, if they make the grade in the east.

Advance sale of the pasteboards has been large and the largest crowd that has been seen in the huge bowl since football season will probably be on hand to witness the cream of the south compete for a chance to represent America in Paris in July.

Practically every college of the south will be represented Saturday, and many of the prep athletes from the nearby high schools will also try.

Paddock Training

Charles Paddock, world's champion sprinter, holder of ten world's records, is working out this week and will run on the coliseum track tomorrow to see just what condition he is in after his injury in the east. He will be able to tell about how he will run Saturday following this workout and friends are anxiously awaiting the result of the trials.

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, will also be seen in action, being scheduled to go three rounds with a couple of local fighters, and this promises to draw as much attention as the tryouts.

FIGHT RESULTS

At PHILADELPHIA — Ad Stone, Paterson, N. J., and Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, draw, (ten); Eddie Kid Wagner, Philadelphia, outpointed Mickey Travers, Boston (ten); Bud Christiano, Philadelphia, outpointed Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo (eight).

At COLUMBUS—Herbie Schaefer, Chicago, defeated Phil O'Dowd (twelve).

At EAST CHICAGO—Frankie Garcia, California, defeated Mickey O'Dowd, Muncie, Ind. (ten).

SPORT COMMENT

By AL DIX.

The announcement by the management of the Chicago White Sox that Eddie Collins had been appointed assistant manager and would lead the team while Johnny Evers, manager during the absence of Frank Chance, is recovering from the effects of an operation for appendicitis, will be extremely gratifying to baseball fans throughout the country.

While deploring the second stroke of hard luck that has befallen the White Sox, for the sake of Charlie Comiskey, the grand "Old Roman," followers of the game will be glad to know that recognition has at last been given to one of the greatest men who ever wore a baseball uniform.

Originally a member of Connie Mack's "Million-Dollar Infield," along with Barry, McInnis and Baker, Collins was sold to the Sox for a reputed price of $50,000 when the Athletic manager deliberately wrecked his world champion machine.

Like George Sisler of the Browns, he is one of the cleanest men in baseball, a gentleman at all times, and a very hard worker, regardless of the standing of his club in the pennant race. His work at second has held the Sox infield together for a number of years.

During the scandal of 1919, when many of the White Sox were forever disgraced for selling out to a bunch of gamblers at the world's series with Cincinnati, far above all talk of crooked work stood the name of Collins. No suspicion or taint of crookedness has ever been associated with his work in the big leagues.

Picked by many experts as the greatest second baseman of all time, his work as manager of the White Sox will be closely watched. Twice has illness robbed the Sox of a leader this year. Frank Chance, soon after reporting at the opening of the season, collapsed and had to return to California. Now John Evers is down. Comiskey is indeed fortunate that he had a man of Collins' character and capability to step into the vacancy.

The disgraceful conduct of the French fans during the contest between the Olympic rugby teams representing France and America at the Colombes stadium last Sunday will be deplored by all true sportsmen in every corner of the globe.

Their actions were all the more reprehensible in the light of the statements made by the officials, the French team captain and others identified with the exhibition, after the game, in which they, without exception, stated that the game was won on its merits and that the better team of the two was the victor.

This, however, is not the first time that an American team has been accused of rough play. During the war, several Canadian rugby teams were widely criticized for their apparent roughness, when it was a fact that the Canadians were playing very gentle according to their own practices.

The defeat of Sunday was all the more bitter to the French in that, up to the week previous, they had no doubt but that the championship would be won by France. America's great showing against Roumania planted doubt in their mind and this was fanned into hatred by several sporting writers on Paris dailies.

The action of "beating up" the handful of American fans in the grandstand was very ungentlemanly, to say the least.

Just what effect this episode will have on the main Olympic events is hard to say. If our sprinters, hurdlers and weight men meet with the same kind of a reception, trouble no doubt will ensue, and a scandal that will forever effect the future success of Olympic games will follow.

This is especially pertinent to Los Angeles, where the games will be held in 1932. The French authorities will do well to make it understood that a repetition of Sunday's affair will not be tolerated.

The French would profit by studying the courtesies extended all invading athletes in the United States, noticeably their own Georges Carpentier, who was shown every consideration when here to fight Jack Dempsey, and upon his return a week ago to battle Tommy Gibbons. Carpentier and Descamps, his manager, have never had anything but the kindest of words to say about their treatment in America.

LAUGH THAT ONE OFF

LIGHTWEIGHTS ON CARD AT VERNON

Young Nationalista Hooks Up with Teddy Silva in Main Event

The little fellows head the card at Doyle's Vernon arena tonight, when Teddy Silva and Young Nationalista hook up in a renewal of their draw fought a month ago. Both will enter the ring weighing close to 115 pounds.

Nationalista is planning an invasion of the east and will do everything he can to create a good impression. Silva is a finished boxer, and put up a great fight against the bell-hop idol in his last appearance in the ring.

In the semi-windup Johnny Lamar meets Johnny Adams, and this scrap should be equal to the go between Lamar and Young Datto last Tuesday night which ended in a draw. Adams has been with the champions at Hollywood, and as Lamar is a Vernon favorite, the fight should be a hummer.

Heavies on Bill

The special event will be between Mickey Rockson and "Goat" Lavin, the heaviest leather pushers on the bill. The latter is an old timer at Vernon and has lots of followers.

Other events scheduled are: Eddie McAuliffe vs. Bud For-Tierney vs. Leonard Lynch, 135 Tierney vs. Leonard Lyunch, 135 pounds; and Frankie Osner vs. Johnny McManus, 122 pounds. The bouts will be refereed by Harry Lee.

Gibbons Favorite in Early Betting Circle

CHICAGO, May 20.—Early odds favoring Tom Gibbons, the leading sock broker of St. Paul, over Georges Carpentier, the boulevardier, have aroused the ire of Francois Descamps, who manages Georges. It is the contention of Descamps that Gibbons has never done so much against a good small man.

During the Frenchman's first public workouts since landing, Descamps took occasion to point out that Gibbons had been unable to knock out Battling Levinsky, who fell before Carpentier.

"Look what Greb did to him in New York," Descamps offered in equivalent French." Other good but small men who have been stumblingblocks to Gibbons were Chuck Wiggins, Bob Moha and Boy McCormick. "Then why," with a shrug that brought his shoulders to a level of his ears, "should Tommy be the favorite."

Over in Gibbons' Gold Coast camp, Tom and his manager, Eddie Kane, seemed able to laugh this off without trouble. The odds, quoting Gibbons at 8 and 7 to 5, remained unchanged.

WINS AT BOSTON

Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles Athletic club, fly-weight crack, won his first bout in the Olympic finals at Boston last night by decisively beating William G. Randeo, of the Knights of St. Anthony, New York.

TIGERS, INDIANS FIGHT FOR THIRD

Vernon Returns After Losing Ten of Fourteen Games While on Road

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Bill Essick and his Vernon Tigers returned to Los Angeles yesterday, and are ready to fight it out with the Seattle Indians for third place in the Coast league race. The Seattle-Vernon series gets under way today, and said battle promises to be a hot one, for the Indians have a slight jump on Vernon, and the Cats propose to cut this down while Salt Lake and San Francisco are battling for the top position on the Bee lot.

Vernon had a most unsuccessful season on their road trip, losing ten out of fourteen games. The Seals took them down the line the first week, five games to two, and Salt Lake duplicated that feat last week, much to the dismay of local admirers of the Bengals.

Seattle is coming to the front rapidly now, following a slump at the start of the race, when injuries played havoc with their chances. The Indians took six games out of seven from the Oaks at Emeryville, and they look like sure contenders for the banner this year. The players who were on the injured list at the start of the season have now rounded into shape and are playing regularly, so the team is able to put forth its regular strength.

San Francisco, after a 50-50 series with Sacramento, travels to Salt Lake, where they will probably find the Bees clouting the ball in regular style. Home runs will undoubtedly be as thick as bees all during the week, and most of them will be made by Duffy Lewis' gang. Salt Lake hitters are about the luckiest in the world when it comes to having high batting averages, for they have a small park to play in, and they take advantage of everything.

Portland will play host to Oakland this week, rounding out the series between the teams, and this should be an even battle, for the Beavers and Oaks are rated about the same strength.

New Color Process to Bare Bogus Canvases

NEW YORK, May 14.—French chemists have perfected new methods of identifying pictures, according to the American Chemical Society. They use groups of red, blue, green or white to light the picture, and they examine the suspected canvas with the spectrometer.

Employment of these various colors puts in relief the retouchings, scrapings and changed signatures which constitute a false picture. By employing the ultra-violet ray they make the zinc-white and certain varnishes stand out by fluorescence.

Finally, by scraping off very small amounts of paint, they have made spectrographic analyses of them, and have been able thus to determine, for example, in a false Renoir, the presence of a cadmium yellow, when Renoir only used chrome yellow.

BASEBALL QUESTION BOX

If you have some question to ask about baseball—
If you want a rule interpreted—
If you want to know anything about a play or player—
Write John B. Foster, the man who helped make the rules under which the game is played today. If you want a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed, envelope. Otherwise your question will be answered in this column.
Address: John B. Foster, Special Baseball Correspondent of the Evening News, 811 World Building, New York.

QUESTION—One is out and runners on second and third. Batter hits to first, who throws to catcher. Runner from second was on third, with runner from third half way home. Catcher ran latter back to third and touched him standing on base. Other runner had got back to second. Umpire called both out. Was he right?

ANSWER—Nobody was out. There was no force play.

QUESTION—Will you please tell me the ages and how long the following players have been playing for the Detroit Tigers: Heilmann, Blue, Jones and Bassler.

ANSWER—Heilmann, 30 years old, nine years with Detroit, including 1924; Blue, 27 years old, four years with Detroit; Jones, 31 years old, nine years with Detroit; Bassler, 29 years old, four years with Detroit.

QUESTION—Batter hits a fly to left fielder, who in making the catch slips but is able to give the ball a bat with his hand so that the center fielder, who is nearby, can catch the ball. The center fielder does not expect such a play and drops the ball. Who is credited with the error?

ANSWER—I wouldn't score it an error I would give the batter a hit.

KEARNS STAMPS FALL BOUT FOR DEMPSEY AS O. K.

Champion's Manager Says Jack Will Fight Some Time In September

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Jack Dempsey, king of the heavyweight boxing division of the world, will definitely show his stuff next September in New York or New Jersey in a match to be staged by Tex Rickard and Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, and his opponent, will be either Wills, Firpo or Gibbons.

Kearns put his official O. K. on such an arrangement today.

"In two weeks I'll be headed east," Kearns said, "with the first three of a series of films Dempsey has made here and upon arriving in Gotham will get busy on the September fight for Dempsey.

May Be Gibbons

"Dempsey will take on Wills, Firpo or Gibbons. That much is certain and the odds seem to favor Gibbons as the next man to get a crack at Dempsey's crown. If Gibbons knocks Carpentier over at Michigan City on May 31 there will be a popular demand for Gibbons to meet the champion. And it will be a demand that we will have to heed. The showing Gibbons made at Shelby, plus a win over Carpentier would entitle him to a return match with Dempsey.

"Though Dempsey defeated Firpo in that Polo grounds fight, the South American is still a good card, and we will try to line up another engagement with him.

Bout Is Certain

"A lot of people think Wills is entitled to a chance, too, and we are willing to give it to him if such a bout can be made a go.

"This much is certain. Dempsey will fight next September and the other man in the ring will be Wills, Firpo or Gibbons."

Kearns also added that Dempsey was doing "light work" for the match now.

The part Kearns will take in promoting the fight will be the handling of advertising. While Rickard will officially promote the battle Kearns said he would see that it is put before the public as no other fight has ever been.

"Dempsey will stay here until four or five weeks before the fight. Then he will come east on a special train that will be covered with signs reading 'Jack Dempsey Special,'" Kearns said. "From coast to coast we'll advertise the fight as no other fight has ever been advertised."

Entry List Is Closed With Thirty-one Signed Up; Start Play Soon

By ROSS M. RUSSELL, JR.
Of The Evening News Staff.

The annual community tennis tournament will start the end of this week, is the announcement of Bob Laird, who is managing the tournament. All the entries are in and the drawing will be made and announced within the next two or three days. It is planned to have the play commence Thursday or Friday.

Last year Howard Wimmer romped away with the cup. Bob Stanford was runner up last year. Bob Laird and Weinie Maxwell of the Glendale High school tennis team are doped out as strong contenders for the cup. Earl Schook, who used to be quite a player a few years ago, will be in the tournament. F. W. MacPherson, local tennis enthusiast, is also figured to finish near the top. Herb Williams and Herschel Shaefer from the Griffith Park tennis courts will give any of them a good battle.

From the Glendale high school faculty Ross V. Miller, general science instructor, M. N. Smith, and Bert Rolfe are entered. Dale Robinson, Nathan Finch, Francis Hardey, Lee Osborne, and Lywellen White, all high school students, should furnish lively competition.

Thirty-one are scheduled to play. The schedule will be posted on the courts at the high school. Besides the courts at the Harvard high school several private courts are being utilized for this tournament.

CUT POWER RATES

BOSTON, May 20.—The cut in rates of electric power, made by the Boston Edison company, from 9½ to 9 cents a kilowatt hour, will be absorbed by the company through expansion of business. In the last four years the rates of the company have been reduced 19 per cent, the power sold has increased 30 per cent and the revenues have gained 22 per cent.

READY FOR MATCH

NEW YORK, May 20.—The University of Arizona polo team, the western champions, is in town for the purpose of meeting Princeton for the championship. The issues will be decided in a series of matches next week.

Another Baseball League Season to Open Here Tonigt

The indoor baseball summer league will be ushered in tonight at 7 o'clock at the Harvard street high school athletic field when the Piggly Wiggly team and the Labor Union clash in the opening game of the schedule.

Six of the best teams in the city are playing under the auspices of Community Service, and R. E. Tucker, chairman, states that much interest is being shown in the organization.

Although minus the dignitaries usually present when a league schedule is opened, a large crowd is expected tonight when the first ball is pitched.

RING ACTIVITIES ARE SLOWING UP

New York Is Not Center of Big Fights Now Like Last Year's Doings

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 20.—It has become more and more evident during recent weeks that the flood tide of boxing in New York has passed its peak and that the ebb toward indifferent shows and comparatively small purses has set in.

At this time last year, Willard, Firpo and Johnson had appeared in the milk fund show; Eugene Criqui and Jimmy Wilde were coming here to engage in international championship bouts, Firpo the furious, was being built up toward the great enterprise and Leonard and Tendler were making ready to engage in their second bout for the lightweight title.

Contrast that period of vast activity with the supine present, represented by the following fact, to-wit:

Times Are Slow

There isn't a fight of even ordinary moment on the fire with the exception of the proposed Dempsey-Wills affair and not a few authorities sincerely believe this bout will never see the light of day.

The condition is generally traceable to a new policy of retrenchment on the part of the promoters, Rickard included. They are no longer offering fabulous purses for the simple and sufficient reason that they know the money is no longer there. Boxing fans have turned their backs upon shows where high prices prevail unless the attraction is altogether worthy of their dollars.

They would cheerfully pay $25 to see Dempsey maul Wills or vice versa; they would rise to another Dempsey-Firpo frolic in a manner befitting the occasion. But there isn't another attraction in or out of the book that would prompt the boys to pay heavily, if at all.

Big Purses Wanted

The field of cash customers has been bled white and everyone seems to see it with the possible exception of the boxers themselves. They are all waiting on the big purses which they will never get.

What, for example, has become of the flyweight championship bout that was to bring together Pancho Villa and Frankie Genaro. Pancho's manager declined to be a party to an indoor meeting on the theory that the great outdoors is a fine place for cash customers. He is waiting to be seduced by the big money, and probably will continue to do so indefinitely, unless he lowers his estimate of values.

They are talking of matching Benny Leonard and Mickey Walker for the welterweight title. Talk was never expensive. Leonard has publicly stated that he wants $200,000 for his little end; Walker, no doubt, has similar ideas. That being the case, any promoter who attempted to put on a Leonard-Walker match would find himself holding a hollow bag.

CLOSE HATCHERIES

PETALUMA, Cal., May 20.—Several big hatcheries here have closed temporarily because of the restrictions on shipments imposed by the foot and mouth disease quarantine. The spring shipments of poultry, which normally total around $5,000,000, will be greatly curtailed.

NEW OIL RECORDS

SHREVEPORT, La., May 20.—For the fourth consecutive week, oil production in Louisiana and Arkansas has set a new record. In the last week, daily average production was 203,857 barrels, an increase of 2645. Sixty-four new wells added 16,035 barrels initial production.

COAL MARKET DULL

PITTSBURGH, May 20.—The coal market remains exceedingly dull in this district. Lake coal is moving from interests that have their own boats and docks, but at the rate of 3,000 less carloads a week than in the same period last season.

EXPORT COTTON

BOSTON, May 20.—Some mills here, which have curtailed production of cloth, are selling raw cotton for export, getting spot prices, and buying futures for fall delivery at around 25 cents.

HEIR TO DEERING ESTATE IS NAMED

Mrs. Helen Stoddard to Get Bulk of Fortune; Will Reveals His Past

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Mrs. Helen Elizabeth Stoddard, who is now in Los Angeles on a visit, is chief heir of the late Charles W. C. Deering, son of the late head of the International Harvester company, filing of the will of the prominent clubman here today revealed.

Deering, in giving half of his estate to Mrs. Stoddard, summarily cut off two former wives with the declaration that "they had been amply cared for."

Deering had been in the public eye for years until he died here recently, following an overdose of a sleep-producing drug. A $50,000 breach of promise suit filed against him by Mrs. Marguerite Curl, a widow, is understood to have been settled out of court for $10,000 but a few days prior to Deering's death.

WILL NAME THREE NEW DRY AGENTS

Appointment of Successors To Suspended Officers Expected at Once

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—The appointment of three prohibition agents to succeed Daniel J. O'Leary, Clarence Parker and Louis P. Remegie, whose suspension and dismissal yesterday disrupted the federal dry forces in Southern California, was expected today. Prohibition Director S. F. Rutter, of San Francisco, announced he would replace all the men at once.

With O'Leary suspended for 30 days and Parker and Remegie dismissed outright, J. H. Shoup, permit investigator, was named temporary acting agent in charge of the Southern California district, the position which O'Leary held.

O'Leary was suspended for thirty days without pay on charges of "gross dereliction of duty." The other two were dismissed for "unofficial conduct."

Methodist Conference Urges Propaganda Campaign In Every Nation

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 20.—A world-wide prohibition campaign, furthered by widespread propaganda in favor of all nations adopting America's experiment against drink which is called a success, was recommended today by the district general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Professor James A. James of Evanston, Ill., has submitted a commission report recommending that week-day schools be established in every community for religious education and that public school programs be so arranged that time will be given for religious instruction.

Jap Ship Owners to Build Port Terminal

LONG BEACH, May 20.—The Himuro company, operators of a fleet of Japanese fishing boats and refrigerator ships, is investigating sites for the establishment of a terminal here, as the result of the recent passage of a $5,000,000 bond issue for harbor improvement. M. Kondo, general counsel of the Japanese company and president of the Mexican Industrial Development company, yesterday afternoon took up details with city officials of the plans to deepen and develop the channels and for construction of docks and wharves.

One-Eyed Man Can't Keep Tab on Wife's Flirtations, Claim

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Denying that he ever choked his wife, Anna J. Myers, Pasadena matron; that he broke her glasses, slapped her face, broke her watch, knocked her off the running board of their automobile, dragged her by the feet or knocked her over the back of a vacuum cleaner, Almer E. Myers, Pasadena merchant, today filed an answer and cross-complaint to a divorce action started by Mrs. Myers.

Myers also denies that his wife is entitled to $250 a month alimony and $1,000 attorney's fee, as she demands in her action.

In his cross-complaint, the Pasadena merchant declares that his wife has taken advantage of his physical lack, to flirt with strange men. Myers is blind in one eye and is unable to see clearly with the other, he says.

WAGE CUT FAILS TO BOOST SALES

Conditions in Shoe Business Spotty; Jobbers Stock Small Quantities

By J. C. ROYLE.
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright 1924

NEW YORK, May 20.—The shoe business, like the leopard, is spotty, according to men engaged in it. But they are more hopeful than they have been for some time of being able to change the dark spots. This feeling is due in large measure to wage reductions at Haverhill and Lynn. These have tended to improve manufacturing conditions in New England but it is not yet apparent that they have served to stimulate sales.

In spite of the betterment at Haverhill, another manufacturer there has thrown up his hands. H. E. Lewis has withdrawn from Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association, claiming that it is impossible to manufcture shoes there at a profit under present conditions. Membership in the association has dropped in the last year from 53 firms to 32. On the other hand at least one million-pair order has been booked in the last fortnight and factories of the lucky bidder will be speeded up to the utmost.

Stocks Are Small

Shoe stocks in the hands of retailers and jobbers are not large. Nevertheless the distributors in question seem undesirous of increasing them materially. This is due largely to style complexes. The average retail dealer turns over his stock completely about twice a year. The faster he makes it move as a whole, the more money he makes. The process is somewhat like that of a watch. Turning over of the small wheels of each style and model, results in the slow turning over of the big wheel of total stock. Merchants are afraid of the check to total turnover exercised by a non-moving style and are stocking lightly in consequence. They seem to prefer to lose an occasioal sale because they have not the size or model wanted rather than to have a volume of fancy shoes, for which the acute demand has passed, stuck on their shelves.

The cut in wages in the New England factories has not been followed as yet by a decrease in shoe prices. In the mid-West, one of the largest manufacturers made a cut in February and as a result stimulated sales sufficiently to keep output up nearly as high as in the spring of 1923. Some manufacturers have increased the length and scope of their salesmen's trips in the hope of garnering business checked by the cold weather of the late spring.

More Sport Styles

The effect of the turn toward outdoor sports which has been a big feature of American national life since 1918 is already beginning to make itself felt in the shoe business. Sport models are in demand and the buying of this kind of footwear is independent of the demand for the staple business and dress types. Warm weather is encouraging sales of white shoes and of the rubber soled varieties.

Shoe manufacturers are not heavily stocked with leather. They have bought leather the same way dealers bought shoes—from hand to mouth. If there is a distinct improvement in the sale of shoes, and it seems as though this might be counted on with reasonable certainty, the makers will have to go to the tanners for large supplies. The latter have ample stocks on hand but these stocks have improved decidedly in quality. A good portion of the heavy stocks of leather piled up during and just after the war, many of which were not of the highest grade or quality, has been moved.

Hosiery Sales Good

The sales of hosiery are keeping up exceedingly well especially in the full-fashioned type of women's stockings. Factories engaged on these kinds of goods are the bright spots in an otherwise unsatisfactory textile situation. The feature of the trade this spring has been the superseding of white by the nude shades and the extension of the color range of women's stockings usually kept in stock. The number of women who wear silk hose is steadily increasing in this country and recently the Japanese and Chinese raw silk markets have been in a condition thoroughly favorable for American manufacturers. As with shoes, stockings for sports wear are in tremendous demand for both men and women with the light wool and silk and wool materials especially popular.

CARLOAD OF BEES

WINNIPEG, Man., May 20.—A carload shipment including one million honey bees is expected to arrive here over the Northern Pacific in the next day or so. The bees were purchased at Conway, N. C., by R. J. Smith, a Canadian bee man.

NEW YORK CLOSING

H. J. DUIZEND
For International News Service

NEW YORK, May 20.—A sharp decline in values was the response to the Senate's adoption of the soldier bonus bill in the stock market today. As prices had risen quite emphatically in yesterday's closing hour on rumors that the administration forces had been successful in securing the necessary vote sfor upholding the president's veto, the White House defeat naturally was severely felt.

Wall street professed to be keenly disappointed over the final outcome of the bonus battle and was quick to assume the stand that such action ended any hope for taxation relief in the present session of Congress.

In business circles, however, the tax situation was viewed with less gloom. A good deal of comfort was derived from the prospect for a 25 per cent reduction in 1923 taxes to be made effective this year by joint congressional resolution, even in case no revenue legislation would be enacted.

A violent break in prices greeted the overnight news at the opening. With the exception of the oils and rails, in which losses were less extensive, the entire list was down from 2 to 6 points from the previous closing, a long series of fresh lows for 1923 being registered in representative groups. Liquidating orders by anti-bonus interests undoubtedly played some part in the initial unsett'ement, but it was unquestionably true that professional operations were the main factor in the movement.

Following the first shock, the list came back rather easily. Bears took advantage of the ensuing dullness to launch another attack in the early afternoon. American Telephone and Telegraph broke about 2 points on the news of the offering of $150,000,000 additional stock. Fisher Body experienced a precipitate break of nearly 14 points.

Railroad shares acquitted themselves much better. Fractional losses ruled in most issues, but Chesapeake and Ohio and Pere Marquette developed real strength and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico advanced briskly on the declaration of a 16½ per cent extra dividend and the announcement that Missouri Pacific has gained control of the property on terms most favorable to New Orleans-Texas holders.

Cotton turned upward after early heaviness. Grains were firmer. Foreign exchanges recovered somewhat from initial weakness.

The market became distinctly weak in the last hour. Bears were more courageous in all sections, forcing numerous representative issues to new low levels for the current year. Studebaker fell to a new low of 80½. Anaconda broke below 29, the lowest price in several years.

CHICAGO WHEAT

By International News Service

CHICAGO, May 20.—Grains displayed firmness today. Wheat ended 1-4 to 3-8 higher; corn unchanged to 3-8 and oats 1-4 to 3-8 higher.

Passage of the soldiers' bonus bill over the president's veto made shorts nervous and doubtful of the administration ability to prevent passage of the McNary-Haugen bill. As a result they covered and wheat rose in the early trading after an easy opening which reflected weakness in New York securities and the absence of frost overnight. Offerings were absorbed readily and the market advanced, encouraged by local buying as a result of the strength in corn.

GREEK CHILDREN DYING OF HUNGER

Disease Wiping Out Babies by Regiments, Asserts Relief Worker

MILWAUKEE, May 20.—"Children in Greece are worse off than mangy dogs," declared Captain J. C. Curran, New York, director of medical service of the Near East Relief. "There are regiments of children dying in Greece from diseases that follow in the wake of starvation," he said.

"The neglect and utter destitution in the near east is unbelievable. I have seen tiny, emaciated children eating blades of grass and digging ravenously in the ground for roots to allay the pangs of hunger.

MADRID, May 20.—All unmarried or divorced women who have attained their majority will have the right to vote by the terms of a new electoral law recently decreed by the Directorate.

WOMAN MAY QUIT PARLIAMENT JOB

Cares of Family Demand All of Mother's Time, Says Member's Husband

LONDON, May 20.—The call of motherhood is stronger than that of Parliament, Captain Hilton Philipson said, in discussing the rumor that Mrs. Philipson, the former Mabel Russell, and one of eight women holding seats in the House of Commons, would retire from public life shortly. The Philipsons have three young children, and the captain said that, because of the hard work involved in caring for them and attending to her duties in the House of Commons, his wife would probably put the call of the nursery first.

HOPATCONG, N. Y., May 20.—William Wright, 51 years old, tied three sticks of dynamite to his belt, rigged electric wires to them and threw a switch. His body was blown through the door of his room. Wright was an employe of the Atlas Powder company.

AUTO PEACE LEAGUE

HARTFORD, Conn., May 20.—Founded on the conviction that Connecticut is a leader in laws governing motor vehicles—since Great Britain has just asked Connecticut for advice in the matter—a group of Hartford citizens has formed a "League for Peace," which is not what on the surface it seems. The peace involved is in quieter streets, and the league asks all its members to work to have motorists limit their noises all they can.

CHILDREN ENJOY TRIP TO LIBRARY, LETTERS REVEAL

Young Visitors Tell Reasons Why They Had Pleasant Afternoon's Fun

Do children of grammar school age appreciate attention to their interests? Mrs. Alma J. Danforth, Glendale librarian, has fourteen separate proofs that they do appreciate a guiding hand and treasurers each one as a tribute from the youth of Glendale.

Last week the B6 class from the Broadway school visited the library for the purpose of receiving instruction in obtaining books, and the value of using the library for reference work. Mrs. Danforth personally conducted the youngsters through the library and took particular pains to explain every detail of the library system.

She feels that her efforts were well worth while for Wednesday afternoon she received a letter from each and every one of the children telling her how much they appreciated her efforts. The little fellow who wrote the following enjoyed the visit for more than one reason.

Saw "Encyclopia"

"Dear Mrs. Danforth, I certainly enjoyed my visit to the library and I will try to come again.

"It certainly was a treat because we got out of school and learned about the encyclopia too.

"I enjoyed the walk too.

"Yours respectfully,
"CLYDE CARLTON."

Each boy and girl had a different reason for enjoying the trip. This boy found a novel place to get his current events.

"Dear Mrs. Danforth, I surely enjoyed my visit to the library and I feel more at home than before our room went. It would be much easier for me to find books as I know about the catlogs.

"If I wanted to find current events I would go to the magazines or to the encyclopedia.

"Some Saturday I am coming down to the library and look at the mounted pictures and books about Mut and Jeff bringing up father.

"Your friend,
"ROBERT WESTERN."

One of the little girls of the class expressed her appreciation of the librarian's attention very sweetly in the following letter:

Likes Library Books

"Dear Mrs. Danforth—We surely did appreciate our trip to the library.

"Just as soon as I got home I made mother sign the card to have permission to get a book to read.

"I got a book from the library last week, and I like to read it very much.

"I know just where to find the books, as you showed us. Before you told me how to look up the books in certain rows, I would have to go all over the library looking for a book.

"I have great pleasure in reading those books after coming home from school. I don't like to read the books we have at school as well as the ones at the library.

"Sincerely yours,
"MARION KHODIGIAN."

Kids Appreciative

Mrs. Danforth says that it is always a pleasure to work with the children for they really appreciate what is done for them. The Glendale library has many special feature for the young people among which is one of the finest pcture collections of any library of Glendale's size in California.

This collection includes colored pictures of all kinds of bird and animal life, as well as a complete set of portraits of great men in history. It is circulated in the Glendale schools for purposes of instruction and display.

Community Players To Add New Members

EAGLE ROCK, May 20.—An organization of 1000 members is sought by the local Community Players, whose rejuvenation has met with the hearty endorsement, support and interest of some of the biggest business men of the district, the faculty and students of Occidental college and leading residents of Eagle Rock. According to present plans, when brought to completion, the Eagle Rock Bowl and the Community Players of Eagle Rock will be discussed and commended in one breath throughout the country, according to Mrs. Elgie Lowry Fischer, director. They will be organized together, the Community Players growing in membership as the bowl construction goes on. There are possibilities in the formation of such an organization at the present time, as it will be linked with the bowl project, that give Eagle Rock an opportunity to command the respect and interest of Little Theatre organizations, Drama leagues and Community Players in every city where such have been formed with varying success. It should be second to none in the whole country in the movement for the development of the drama. The possibilities for productions of merit to command respect of those who have set the highest standards are unlimited. In an organization of such numbers there will be a wealth of talent to draw from.

CIGARETTE IS COSTLY

NOANK, Conn., May 20.—Fire believed to have started from a cigaret carelessly dropped into a pile of shavings destroyed the shipyard of the Charles W. Morse interests here at a loss of approximately $150,000.

ADDED FEATURES OF MEETING ARE TOLD IN REPORT

Secretary Writes Further Details of W. C. T. U. Gathering Here

So interesting was the W. C. T. U. meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. Floyd Mercer that Mrs. Anne E. Sippel, secretary, sends an additional account of the meeting from Manhattan Beach.

Mrs. Sippel writes, "Mrs. Dockeray led the devotions, reading part of the fifteenth chapter of St. John, 'The Parable of the Vine,' showing the necessity of our abiding in the vine if we are to accomplish anything worth while.

"The topic of the meeting was 'Problems of the Day.' Mrs. R. W. Mottern had charge of the program and topics of importance were discussed. The principal speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Terry, parish worker in one of our local churches, who had been a worker in the Y. W. C. A. and through observation has considered the dress problem of our young people a serious one.

Show Responsibilities

"Facts were shown that we were facing other vital problems in our schools and colleges. Perhaps parents have been too willing to leave some of the important teaching to the schools rather than assume some of the responsibilities at home.

"As mothers, let us endeavor to influence our boys and girls so they can say with the poet:

" 'Just let me turn aside awhile,
And leave the rugged way;
Just let me rest a moment now,
And find my yesterday.
If I but pause and close my eyes,
I easily can see
The holy shrine of long ago,
The shrine at mother's knee.'

"At the close of the meeting the hostess served refreshments and a social half hour was spent."

HUGE GEM FOUND BY PEARL DIVER

Mexican Fisherman's Luck Cause of Stampede to West Coast Waters

LAREDO, Tex., May 20.—According to an official report issued by the ministry of commerce, industry and labor of the Mexican government, Jorge von Forstal, a veteran pearl fisher of Lower California, has found a 17½-carat pearl, which is valued at 17,000 pesos ($8500), and now has the precious article in his possession. Pearl fishing in the southern portion of Lower California, about the port of La Paz, which has been in a dormant condition for some time past, has taken on a veritable boom as a result of the finding of this valuable pearl, and the industry of pearl fishing promises to assume big proportions immediately.

Fishermen who have been fishing for pearls have complained against the high export duties the Mexican government charged, which, they claim, have kept foreign buyers from invading the Mexican pearl market, making it difficult for them to dispose of their products. This duty, according to a statement given out by the Mexican government, has been abolished.

Urge Purchase of $16,500 House, Lot For Sunday School

With additional space needed for the rapidly growing Sunday school of the First Methodist Episcopal church a specially called quarterly conference last night at the church decided to recommend to the board of trustees the purchase of the house and lot of David Francy adjoining the church on South Kenwood for $16,500.

For some time it has been apparent that the Sunday school needed more room. By acquiring the additional ground the church will be enabled in the near future to provide more class rooms for the church school, which has as superintendent A. W. Tower.

Congressional leaders today indicated the tax bill would be reported out of conference this week for final action in the Senate and House. Under the rules, the bill will be considered first by the House and if the compromise rates are accepted there, it will then go to the Senate for the final touch before being sent to the White House.

Expect Settlement

In the next few days the principal provisions of the tax measure will be settled by the conferences. Indications pointed to adoption of the Simmons normal income rates, ranging from 2 per cent on incomes of $4,000 to 4 per cent on $4,000 to $8,000 incomes, and 6 per cent above that figure.

A real fight, however, will be staged on the surtaxes, the House having adopted a maximum of 37½ per cent, while the Senate enacted a 40 per cent maximum. A compromise is expected.

changes are desired by congressmen before the bill is made acceptable to a majority.

The House agricultural committee, which reported the bill to the House, burned its bridges behind it by rejecting all other farm relief measures, and is prepared to stand or fall on the pending bill. The Senate has the McNary-Haugen and a half dozen other bills before it. Should the House mutilate beyond recognition or kill the McNary-Haugen measure, the Senate is in position to substitute some other plan of farmer aid.

BEQUEATH FUNDS FOR UNIVERSITY

Wealthy Woman's Estate Goes to Establish College at Burbank, Claim

BURBANK, May 20.—The entire estate of a vastly wealthy eastern woman, totaling from $15,000,000 to $30,000,000 has been assigned to a board of five trustees for the founding of a great university in Burbank, on a site at Benmar Hills, it is announced by Robert E. Moody, president of the Southern California corporation. The names of the trustees are: Judge Gavin W. Craig, L. E. Behymer, B. W. Marks, Robert E. Moody and Oliver O. Clark.

Funds Ready Soon

A portion of the great endowment will become available within a few months, Mr. Moody states, outlining that it is planned to use $100,000 for the erection of a club house to be known as the Benmar Lake Hearth club, and $150,000 for its endowment. The object of this club will be to foster art and music through the assisting of those who show particular talent in these directions.

Other Buildings

A church of music with $500,000 for the building and the same amount for the endowment will come out of the large sum. One million dollars for a university building and a millon and one-half for the endowment of the same, with half a million for the improvement of a campus, will take another portion of the great gift. A college of music building to cost $600,000 with an endowment of $2,000,000 and the same figures for a college of art are other plans for which the generous fund will be used. A museum, the building and endowment fund to total $2,000,000 will be another structure to come from the main fund.

Organize to Promote Welfare of Valleys

EAGLE ROCK, May 20.—A new organization, known as the Northeast Civic club of Los Angeles, has been formed to care for the needs of Eagle Rock, Annandale, Rockdale, Highland Park and Glassell Park, known for years as "the five friendly valleys." R. B. Ceis, former publicity manager for the Greater Highland Park association, is acting president; J. C. Johnson, president of the Arroyo Seco bank, is treasurer; R. J. Collins, of the Northeast Realty Board, is secretary, aand L. R. Williams is assistant secretary.

The club has but one object in view, according to Mr. Collins. This is to announce in as impressive a manner as possible the charm and advantages of the northeast section as a place in which to live and build a home. Every resident in the northeast section will be given an opportunity to don the colors of this club and every dollar collected will help swell the fund, which is to be used strictly for advertising purposes, Mr. Collins states.

Dr. Hastings writes: "I want to thank you for the space you allowed Music Week interests, and especially for the kind notice given Mr. O'Haver and myself.

"I wish that more editors would give the recognition of music and musicians which is often deserved."
